Cong Efforts to Take Loc Ninh Again Driven Back

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops tried and failed again in a massive attack today to capture Loc Ninh, a district headquarters town they first struck last Sunday. U.S. and South Vietnamese soldiers, artillery and planes hurled them back.

Field dispatches said 463 Communists were killed in this fourth drive of the week on Loc Ninh, near the Cambodian frontier 72 miles north of Saigon.

If confirmed, the new casualty figure would push the total enemy dead through the running battle in that sector to 832.

Spokesmen reported the allied losses through the week totaled 35 dead and 106 wounded.

In the latest battle, the allies sent the Communists reeling with firepower including six 105mm howitzers, Air Force tactical fighter-bombers, eight-engined B52 saturation bombers and twin-engine C47s armed with rapid-firing Gatling guns.

The fighter-bombers hit Communist positions with 72 strikes while the C47s fired 28,000 rounds of ammunition. B52s flew their third strike in two days on the Communist positions.

American troops suffered one dead and 11 wounded in the latest fighting. South Vietnamese casualties were put at five dead and 10 wounded. Total allied casualties reported for the five-day battle are eight American dead and 32 wounded and 23 South Vietnamese killed and 74 wounded.

Allied troops also reported capturing four prisoners of war from the Viet Cong's 273rd Regiment and 24 weapons, including three new Soviet-designed RPG7 rocket launchers and two flamethrowers.

The assault on Loc Ninh, near the Cambodian border, was one of three Communist attacks up and down the countryside that also included the daring seizure of a South Vietnamese district headquarters hamlet that sits between two big American bases in the central lowlands 360 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Viet Cong burned down more than 300 homes in the assault on Dai Loc hamlet, killed seven civilians and wounded 10 before pulling out, military officers said.

Over North Vietnam, northeast monsoons prevented American bombers from hitting the Hanoi-Haiphong heartland.

Caruthersville Bridge Approved

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The U.S Coast Guard Wednesday gave final approval for the Mississippi River bridge at Caruthersville, resolving a long dispute over bridge design and clearances.

Coast Guard commandant Adm. Willard J. Smith, signed the bridge permit in Washington Wednesday.

The action presumably clears the way for final planning and contracting for the span, which will cross the river near Caruthersville as part of Interstate I55.

The U. S. army corps of engineers at West Memphis, Ark., said today that 500-foot and 900-foot spans were approved. This represents an apparent compromise of alternatives offered by the corps.

The minimum clearance above the high water level of 1937 will be 52.2 feet, with the bridge height increasing above that at the center, engineers said.

The prospective bridge project has been beset by controversy involving navigation interests, the corps of engineers, the Missouri and Tennessee highway departments and the coast guard.

The issues included navigational clearances and federal agency jurisdiction.

M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the state highway commission in Jefferson City, city that construction of the bridge should begin within a year and might be completed in three years.

Three contracts will be let. The first will be for the main river piers.

After these are well along in construction, the contract for steel for the spans will be let, Snider said. The last contract to be let will be the approach spans.

When completed, the bridge will carry traffic on Interstate 155, an east-west spur route between Interstate 55 and Interstate 40.

The 7,100 foot bridge will cost $19,000,000. It will have four lanes.

Snider said the plan approved by the coast guard was the same one submitted by the Missouri and Tennessee highway departments last summer. The first plan for the bridge was submitted in February of 1965.

Snider said the bride will be an asset to the economy of Southeast Missouri and the state. It will be the only bridge crossing the Mississippi River between Cairo and Memphis, a distance of 170 river miles.

NEW YORK (AP) — Indictments charging murder and rape have been filed against two men in the deaths of an 18-year-old girl, member of a rich Greenwich, Conn., family, and her hippie boy friend during an LSD party in the East Village.

The Manhattan ground jury indictments were handed up Wednesday against Donald Ramsey and Thomas Dennis, 26-year-old Negroes.

The victims, both white, were Linda Fitzpatrick and James Hutchinson, 21, who was known as "Groovy"

In addition to the murder charges, Ramsey and Dennis are accused of raping Miss Fitzpatrick. The two men have been held without bail since their arrest shortly after the bludgeoned bodies of Miss Fitzpatrick and Hutchinson were found in a tenement house basement Oct. 8 by Fred Wright, 31, assistant superintendent of the building.

Cross Burns In Back Yard

A three-foot cross was set afire in the back yard of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Doster, 717 Mimosa Drive, Tuesday at 9 p.m.

"I didn't see anyone come in the yard and place the cross in the ground," she said. "It did not burn the cloth on the cross only the substance that was put on it so I put it out and brought it in the house."

The Dosters live next door to City Manager W. Raymert Miller, who dismissed the incident as a Halloween prank.

Reports circulated that at a Ku Klux Klan meeting near Miner Saturday night speakers criticized the city manager for police interference with distribution of Klan handbills in Sikeston earlier this year.

Lyn Makes Late Evening Society Debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's 4-month-old grandson has made a midnight debut into White House society.

Wearing blue pajamas and a slightly bored expression, little Patrick Lyndon Nugent was proudly carried down the long red carpeted main hallway by his grandfather Wednesday night and introduced to late-staying guests at a formal state dinner given in honor of the king and queen of Nepal.

The President held his grandson aloft, then nibbled the baby's ear as the Marine band's pianist played Brahm's lullaby.

The king and queen had already departed for their guest quarters across the street at Blair House and missed the President's impromptu presentation.

The baby had just had his midnight bottle, the President explained, adding: "He just eats and sleeps, that's his job."

Births Decline; Death Rate up

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Fewer babies are being born and more people are dying each year in Missouri, the State Division of Health reported today.

The Bureau of Vital Records reported 77,691 live births in 1966— the smallest total in 21 years. It was 4.3 per cent below 1965 which in turn was 8 per cent below 1964.

The number of 1966 deaths— 51,581— also established a record. The previous high was 50,538 in 1963. Last year's total was 2.6 per cent higher than in 1965.

Shots Fired At Governor Candidate

Rarick, his wife and an aide took cover and escaped injury.

"The whole thing happened about like the flip of a finger," said Rarick. "At first it sounded like someone threw a cherry bomb. Then I turned around and looked at this car. This fellow was pointing a gun right at me."

"The shots kept coming. I jumped between cars," he added. "I couldn't even tell you how many shots were fired. You don't count when you're looking down a gun barrel."

Witnesses said that four shots were counted. However, only one slug was found by police. The battered projectile apparently ricocheted off the covered driveway wall and landed in front of a fire station directly across the street from the Bienville House where Rarick was staying.

Police began a search for three, possibly four men, in a black compact car from which the shots were fired.

Rarick had been at a television station preparing a statement for use in the final days of the gubernatorial campaign.

An aide, Neal Edwards, said the shooting took place about 1:45 a.m.

"We had just driven into the hotel garage and got out of the car," Edwards said. "We took only a few steps and then this car suddenly appeared at the end of the driveway. I saw three or four dark figures in the car. Suddenly I heard the first shot. I drove to the ground and the congressman and his wife ducked between some cars."

"After they got through shooting the car screeched off," Edwards added.

Edwards was asked if he felt the shooting had anything to do with organized crime, a key campaign issue, and he replied: "It possibly could. We've been hitting it pretty hard."

Revenue Department Revisions Progressing

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reported today reorganization of the State Department of Revenue is more than 50 per cent completed and is moving faster than expected.

The goal is to bring in every dollar owed the state at less cost.

A consultant who prepared the plan estimated $6 million more a year could be obtained by tightening up sales collections alone, with proportionate increases in other taxes.

The governor noted a management staff has been provided to coordinate administration of sales, income and other tax units which formerly operated almost independently. This is intended to centralize budgeting, purchasing, accounting and personnel and avoid duplication.

Labor Disputes Idle 200,000

By GLENN WOLF
Associated Press Writer

Labor disputes across the country kept more than 200,000 workmen off the job today and partially tied up production in a variety of industries ranging from automobiles to machine guns.

Also involved were such diverse service-type employes as bus drivers and hospital nurses.

Longest, and least optimistic of settlement, was the industry-wide copper strike which entered its 111th day. The walkout widened overnight and there was little hope of settlement before the year's end. More than 50,000 have been idled since the bulk of U.S. copper production was halted July 15.

Although a new national contract between Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union was ratified and signed days ago, assembly lines remained at a standstill over the sometimes thorny issue of at-the-plant agreements on the local level. Twelve UAW Ford locals were yet to come to terms on these supplements to the national contract.

Production of the M60 machine gun, widely used in the Vietnam war, was halted Wednesday night when 1,500 workers struck the New England division of the Maremont Corp. at Saco, Maine. Some 1,000 members of the Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, voted Tuesday to reject a new 34-month contract offer. No further negotiations were scheduled.

A walkout by six men in Colorado, equipment installers for Western Electric Co., spread into New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and Utah. A spokesman for the Communications Workers of America, Local 8490, said before the overtime assignment dispute is settled, all 900 of the local's members may be on strike in the seven states where Mountain States Telephone Co. operates.

The lengthy copper industry dispute hit one of the last two major production sites Wednesday night when 1,100 members of United Steel Workers Local 4985 struck Anaconda's International Smelting & Refining Co. at Perth Amboy, N.J. Sources close to the big four producers — Kennecott, Anaconda, American Smelting and Refining Co., and Phelps Dodge— said the dispute muay last into January.

No companywide negotiations with the big four have been held for two weeks, none are scheduled and neither side has indicated a softened position. Nineteen unions are involved, and the main issue is pay.

While Ford has called back 20,000 of the 160,000 UAW members who struck the company at midnight Sept. 6, a Ford spokesman said production can't resume until all or virtually all plants are ready to resume operation. A union spokesman said, "The pace they're going (local negotiations), I would think it would be in a week's time."

Despite a temporary court injunction ordering 800 bus drivers and maintenance men back to work in Cincinnati, Ohio, there were no buses on the traffic-clogged streets.

Pope May Undergo Operation Saturday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Reports circulated at the Vatican today that Pope Paul VI will undergo surgery on his prostate gland Saturday morning.

There was no official confirmation, but the Pope's doctors said shortly before midnight Wednesday they had decided to go ahead with the surgery without further delay.

Vatican sources at that time had said this probably meant Saturday or Sunday.

14 Injured as Train Derails

LOMAX, Ill. (AP)— A speeding Santa Fe passenger train with 53 passengers aboard derailed in front of the Lomax depot Wednesday night in west-central Illinois.

Seven passengers were admitted to a Fort Madison, Iowa, hospital. Seven others were treated and released.

The last seven cars of the 10-car Texas Chief derailed, but did not overturn, the Henderson County sheriff's office reported. The cause of the derailment was not known.

The train originated in Chicago and was en route to Houston, Tex., where it was due at 8 p.m. today.

A hospital spokesman in Fort Madison said all the passengers admitted were in good condition.

Land Leveled for New Airport

MARSTON -- Land leveling and clearing for the site of the $200,000, 87-acre New Madrid county airport, one mile north and east of highway 61, is underway.

Mid - Continent Construction company, Malden, is contractor for earth moving and grading.

When completed the airport will have a 60 by 3,200 foot north and south asphalt runway, with hard surfaced turnarounds and taxiways.

W. S. McMullin Construction company, Sikeston, is the contractor for construction, expected to be completed in 60 days.

The expenditure of $200,000 will be financed by $89,000 federal aid, $25,000 state aid and $86,000 in county funds.

The 87 acres were purchased in four sections, 27 acres from Robert and Betty McAlister, Portageville; and 20 acres each from Harry Bolen, Cairo; George Washington estate and Barry Richardson, both of Marston.

A second phase calls for the building of a hanger and office, with direct communications and weather information from the Dyersburg, Tenn., airport. No funds have been appropriated for construction.

LAND HAS BEEN LEVELED on the new New Madrid County airport, one mile north of Marston, before laying an asphalt runway. The view is ease from highway 61.

Two Arrested after Collisions on Roads

Two area drivers were arrested Wednesday following collisions.

In Scott City on highway 61 at 4:30 p.m., a 1949 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Larry Heuring, 19, Illmo, came around a curve on the wrong side and sideswiped a 1965 Buick, driven by Mack Arthur Fisher, 23, Scott City, the state patrol reported. Neither driver was injured.

The truck struck a road guard rail.

Heuring was charged with careless and imprudent driving and driving on the wrong side of the road.

At 9 a.m. in Advance, a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Patsy Garner, 19, Advance, collided with a 1957 Ford one and one-half ton truck, driven by Melvin Stepp, 59, Advance.

The truck pulled out from an intersection into the path of the Pontiac.

Injured was the driver of the Pontiac, and a passenger, Gary Garner, 18, Advance, bruised and scratched.

Stepp was given a summons for careless and imprudent driving and failure to yeild the right-of-way.

Two Charged In Death of Hippieland Pair

NEW YORK (AP) — Indictments charging murder and rape have been filed against two men in the deaths of an 18-year-old girl, member of a rich Greenwich, Conn., family, and her hippie boy friend during an LSD party in the East Village.

The victims, both white, were Linda Fitzpatrick and James Hutchinson, 21, who was known as "Groovy"

In addition to the murder charges, Ramsey and Dennis are accused of raping Miss Fitzpatrick. The two men have been held without bail since their arrest shortly after the bludgeoned bodies of Miss Fitzpatrick and Hutchinson were found in a tenement house basement Oct. 8 by Fred Wright, 31, assistant superintendent of the building.

Cross Burns In Back Yard

A three-foot cross was set afire in the back yard of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Doster, 717 Mimosa Drive, Tuesday at 9 p.m.

"I didn't see anyone come in the yard and place the cross in the ground," she said. "It did not burn the cloth on the cross only the substance that was put on it so I put it out and brought it in the house."

The Dosters live next door to City Manager W. Raymert Miller, who dismissed the incident as a Halloween prank.

Reports circulated that at a Ku Klux Klan meeting near Miner Saturday night speakers criticized the city manager for police interference with distribution of Klan handbills in Sikeston earlier this year.

Lyn Makes Late Evening Society Debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's 4-month-old grandson has made a midnight debut into White House society.

Wearing blue pajamas and a slightly bored expression, little Patrick Lyndon Nugent was proudly carried down the long red carpeted main hallway by his grandfather Wednesday night and introduced to late-staying guests at a formal state dinner given in honor of the king and queen of Nepal.

The President held his grandson aloft, then nibbled the baby's ear as the Marine band's pianist played Brahm's lullaby.

The king and queen had already departed for their guest quarters across the street at Blair House and missed the President's impromptu presentation.

The baby had just had his midnight bottle, the President explained, adding: "He just eats and sleeps, that's his job."

Births Decline; Death Rate up

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Fewer babies are being born and more people are dying each year in Missouri, the State Division of Health reported today.

The Bureau of Vital Records reported 77,691 live births in 1966— the smallest total in 21 years. It was 4.3 per cent below 1965 which in turn was 8 per cent below 1964.

The number of 1966 deaths— 51,581— also established a record. The previous high was 50,538 in 1963. Last year's total was 2.6 per cent higher than in 1965.

Shots Fired At Governor Candidate

"The whole thing happened about like the flip of a finger," said Rarick. "At first it sounded like someone threw a cherry bomb. Then I turned around and looked at this car. This fellow was pointing a gun right at me."

"The shots kept coming. I jumped between cars," he added. "I couldn't even tell you how many shots were fired. You don't count when you're looking down a gun barrel."

Witnesses said that four shots were counted. However, only one slug was found by police. The battered projectile apparently ricocheted off the covered driveway wall and landed in front of a fire station directly across the street from the Bienville House where Rarick was staying.

Police began a search for three, possibly four men, in a black compact car from which the shots were fired.

Rarick had been at a television station preparing a statement for use in the final days of the gubernatorial campaign.

An aide, Neal Edwards, said the shooting took place about 1:45 a.m.

"We had just driven into the hotel garage and got out of the car," Edwards said. "We took only a few steps and then this car suddenly appeared at the end of the driveway. I saw three or four dark figures in the car. Suddenly I heard the first shot. I drove to the ground and the congressman and his wife ducked between some cars."

"After they got through shooting the car screeched off," Edwards added.

Edwards was asked if he felt the shooting had anything to do with organized crime, a key campaign issue, and he replied: "It possibly could. We've been hitting it pretty hard."

Revenue Department Revisions Progressing

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reported today reorganization of the State Department of Revenue is more than 50 per cent completed and is moving faster than expected.

The goal is to bring in every dollar owed the state at less cost.

A consultant who prepared the plan estimated $6 million more a year could be obtained by tightening up sales collections alone, with proportionate increases in other taxes.

The governor noted a management staff has been provided to coordinate administration of sales, income and other tax units which formerly operated almost independently. This is intended to centralize budgeting, purchasing, accounting and personnel and avoid duplication.

Labor Disputes Idle 200,000

By GLENN WOLF
Associated Press Writer

Labor disputes across the country kept more than 200,000 workmen off the job today and partially tied up production in a variety of industries ranging from automobiles to machine guns.

Also involved were such diverse service-type employes as bus drivers and hospital nurses.

Longest, and least optimistic of settlement, was the industry-wide copper strike which entered its 111th day. The walkout widened overnight and there was little hope of settlement before the year's end. More than 50,000 have been idled since the bulk of U.S. copper production was halted July 15.

Although a new national contract between Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union was ratified and signed days ago, assembly lines remained at a standstill over the sometimes thorny issue of at-the-plant agreements on the local level. Twelve UAW Ford locals were yet to come to terms on these supplements to the national contract.

Production of the M60 machine gun, widely used in the Vietnam war, was halted Wednesday night when 1,500 workers struck the New England division of the Maremont Corp. at Saco, Maine. Some 1,000 members of the Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, voted Tuesday to reject a new 34-month contract offer. No further negotiations were scheduled.

A walkout by six men in Colorado, equipment installers for Western Electric Co., spread into New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and Utah. A spokesman for the Communications Workers of America, Local 8490, said before the overtime assignment dispute is settled, all 900 of the local's members may be on strike in the seven states where Mountain States Telephone Co. operates.

The lengthy copper industry dispute hit one of the last two major production sites Wednesday night when 1,100 members of United Steel Workers Local 4985 struck Anaconda's International Smelting & Refining Co. at Perth Amboy, N.J. Sources close to the big four producers — Kennecott, Anaconda, American Smelting and Refining Co., and Phelps Dodge— said the dispute muay last into January.

No companywide negotiations with the big four have been held for two weeks, none are scheduled and neither side has indicated a softened position. Nineteen unions are involved, and the main issue is pay.

While Ford has called back 20,000 of the 160,000 UAW members who struck the company at midnight Sept. 6, a Ford spokesman said production can't resume until all or virtually all plants are ready to resume operation. A union spokesman said, "The pace they're going (local negotiations), I would think it would be in a week's time."

Despite a temporary court injunction ordering 800 bus drivers and maintenance men back to work in Cincinnati, Ohio, there were no buses on the traffic-clogged streets.

Pope May Undergo Operation Saturday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Reports circulated at the Vatican today that Pope Paul VI will undergo surgery on his prostate gland Saturday morning.

There was no official confirmation, but the Pope's doctors said shortly before midnight Wednesday they had decided to go ahead with the surgery without further delay.

Vatican sources at that time had said this probably meant Saturday or Sunday.

14 Injured as Train Derails

LOMAX, Ill. (AP)— A speeding Santa Fe passenger train with 53 passengers aboard derailed in front of the Lomax depot Wednesday night in west-central Illinois.

Seven passengers were admitted to a Fort Madison, Iowa, hospital. Seven others were treated and released.

The last seven cars of the 10-car Texas Chief derailed, but did not overturn, the Henderson County sheriff's office reported. The cause of the derailment was not known.

The train originated in Chicago and was en route to Houston, Tex., where it was due at 8 p.m. today.

A hospital spokesman in Fort Madison said all the passengers admitted were in good condition.

When completed the airport will have a 60 by 3,200 foot north and south asphalt runway, with hard surfaced turnarounds and taxiways.

W. S. McMullin Construction company, Sikeston, is the contractor for construction, expected to be completed in 60 days.

The expenditure of $200,000 will be financed by $89,000 federal aid, $25,000 state aid and $86,000 in county funds.

The 87 acres were purchased in four sections, 27 acres from Robert and Betty McAlister, Portageville; and 20 acres each from Harry Bolen, Cairo; George Washington estate and Barry Richardson, both of Marston.

A second phase calls for the building of a hanger and office, with direct communications and weather information from the Dyersburg, Tenn., airport. No funds have been appropriated for construction.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Others may do it but the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is the only one from our own observation that honors the community's outstanding women annually.

The habit of honoring men appears to come more naturally and to be more universally followed.

Many men have motives that aren't entirely unselfish in becoming civic leaders. Their activity may extend their acquaintance and help their business. It may advance a political career. It may be a source of self gratification.

Feminine motives may be self seeking and selfish, in at least a sense, too, but there is more unselfish community work by women than by men.

It is comforting to believe that women are more compassionate and generous by nature than men but one reason that they do more may be because fewer of them are breadwinners and have more time to assist others.

Notable exceptions are busy women who find time somehow to become actively practicing good samaritans.

Whatever the reason many women serve their communities notably and it is gratifying to observe that in Sikeston some of their achievements get recognition.

Those selected this year for harvest awards maintain the highest traditions of the annual recognition -- Mrs. Wilma Young, Mrs. Della Poe, Mrs. Evelyn Barnett and Dr. Thelma Buckthorpe.

Through their service others will be inspired to pick up the torch.

MA BELL'S BLUES

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company on Wednesday, Nov. 1, proposes to cut its cross-country rates by an annual rate of $100 million. Another $20 million cut is schedule, under Federal Communications Commission orders, for May 1.

There's a hitch. New Jersey has asked the FCC to postpone a $15 million boost on so-called short-haul interstate phone rates, also scheduled for Nov. 1. New Jersey wants public hearings on the proposed changes. The Bell System on Oct. 23 asserted that if the FCC should suspend the short-haul boosts, it would seek to narrow cuts in long-distance tolls.

The Bell System has about 80 million telephones in service. Actually, if the full cut FCC has ordered goes into effect, the saving per phone will average out to about $1.50 a year.

Meanwhile, since the FCC announced an investigation of Bell rates and operations two years ago (Oct. 27, 1965), some three million A.T.&T. shareholders have seen their stock drop from 66-7/8 to about 51 -- a matter of more than $7 billion. The damage may not be over, either, because leading mutual funds are said (New York Times, Oct. 26) to be dumping large blocs of the stock -- "throwing in the sponge" on Mother Bell.

THE VIOLENT SOCIETY

A SPATE OF VIOLENCE is surfacing in our society. Witness the following blurbs for current motion pictures, quoted from reviews and proudly advertised:

"The original and wildest film of the Hell's Angels Cult."

"A prolonged game of sadism. . . knowing, smirking hints of the perverse. . . peeling away layers of hypocrisy."

"It's dirty -- a combination of lust, impotency, vulgarity, nudity, neurosis, brutality, voyeurism, hatred and insanity that culminates in murder."

The films thus advertised are not really the ones being singled out as violent. This distinction is reserved for The Dirty Dozen, Bonnie and Clyde, The St. Valentine's Day Massacre, and In Cold Blood, which will be released later this year. In the making is The Boston Strangler.

THE MOTION PICTURE, of course, always has been a violent art and/or industry. Hollywood scandals have vied for violence with the gangster pictures of the 1930's, the miles of blood guff about World War I, or the "savage rage" of the more recent Dr. Strangelove.

but almost a mystique has been growing up about violence on the screen, stage, and television. In a columns-long review of Bonnie and Clyde, Pauline Kael in The New Yorker even gives a forthright justification: "It is a kind of violence that says something to us; it is something that movies must be free to use. And it is just because artists must be free to use violence -- a legal right that is beginning to come under attack -- that we must also defend the legal rights of those filmmakers who use violence to sell tickets, for it is not the province of the law to decide that one man is an artist and another man a no-talent."

Congressional committees have investigated violence on television but with little effect. The Broadway stage is alive with turbulent and furious action. Apparently the same is true in Britain. Martin Esslin writes: "Only the shocking and the sensational, which could not possibly be shown to mass audiences, remain as a never failing magnet for (stage) audiences."

ANOTHER WRITER in The New Yorker observes -- on another tangent: "I do not know why our popular culture is so hung up on violence. I think it may have less to do with the need for violence than with the third-rateness of the culture and with the kind of talent that turns out all this awful stuff. . . An exchange of gunfire can be more easily convincingly dramatized than a clash of human wills. And, of course, people go for it -- but not just Americans."

Corneille said that violence was right "where mildness is in vain." Recent civil rights demonstrations have spilled over into violence. And one alarming word from the recent Washington march is that "demonstrations are all over. . . from now on, it's la bombe plastique."

H. Rap Brown, the militant civil rights leader, said a few weeks ago: "Violence is as American as cherry pie." Stanley Kauffmann writes of the remark: "Political columnists and book reviewers and ministers and editorial writers have used it as promptly and easily as if they had been born knowing it." A group of delegates to the U. S. Conference on Church and Society asserted on Oct. 24 that violence is "an inherent fact in our society" and urged churches to identify with victims of violence.

As we sit in the air terminals and see the young children from two to six, a lump comes into our throat.

We cannot help but think what a hell of a mess we have made of this world compared to what it was when we were at that age.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

One of the nice things about having a teen-ager in the home is that you never have to bother about wiping cobwebs or dust off the telephone.

Nothing looks happier than a small fat girl who has finally mastered the difficult art of keeping a hula hoop in motion around her chubby body.

It is time to leave a cocktail party when the guests begin to cluster and talk in authoritative tones about what should be done in Vietnam and which Republican should be nominated for president in 1968.

Bluebirds have become so scarce lately that they should put a few in zoo aviaries so children won't grow up without ever having seen one of the loveliest of nature's feathered creatures.

After 60, a fellow always feels like crying inside when someone sends him one of those "funny" birthday cards. He regards himself as a living landmark and expects respect from others, not cleverness, on his anniversaries.

It makes me sad to see a man who not only wears a toupee but also has an artificial flower pinned in his lapel. You have to give him credit for hope, but you can't escape the conviction he's a bit out of touch with reality.

On the other hand, whenever you see a man walking majestically in front of his wife as she pushes a shopping cart through the supermarket, you get a conviction that the American male still has a future.

People who habitually watch television more than three hours every day eventually get the same fixed expression on their faces as those riding to or from work on the subway.

There is no point in the wife of a professional football fan getting a divorce between now and the middle of next January as her husband wouldn't even notice it had happened.

A woman's sense of financial security depends on the number of expensive hats she can't afford to buy but does; a man's depends on how many pairs of shoes he has in his closet.

There is great worry today about the manner in which man is poisoning the very atmosphere he breathes. Between bad air and hot air we're all in peril.

It would be a real irony of time if future archeologists should judge the art level reached by our civilization by the beauty of Christmas liquor bottles they dig up from the debris we leave in passing.

You are probably a success in the business world if you spend more time dictating memos than in answering them.

If a neighbor tells you he just noticed your wife has one blue eye and one brown eye, it's time to build a fence or move to a new neighborhood.

A tactful clothing salesman who wants to sell a customer a suit in another size never tells him that he has gained weight. He says, "Well, you've just normally got big shoulders there— bigger than most."

A house maid had been working for her employer for two years. One day she said, "Mrs. Smith, I'm pregnant and having no husband, I don't know what to do."

Her employer, being a kindly woman, said, "Don't worry dear, have the child and I will adopt it."

A year and a half went by and the maid approached her employer, saying, "Mrs. Smith, I'm with child again."

Her employer was annoyed but didn't want to loose the girl's services, so she adopted the second child too. Three months after the birth of the second baby, the maid came to the woman and said, "I'm sorry Mrs. Smith, but I must leave. I couldn't possibly work for a woman with two children."

A Presidential candiate was campaigning in the West and was giving a speech at an Indian reservation. "If I am elected, my friends, my party will love you as our neighbors." "Buzzonga! Buzzonga!" cheered the Indians. "...and we will eliminate war, poverty and disease!" he continued. "Buzzonga! Buzzonga!" thundered the Indians, the excited squaws holding their paposses in the air to better see the speaker. "We will teach all citizens to have tolerance and understanding. . ." kept on the candidate. "Buzzonga! Buzzonga!" roared the tribe in tribute to the white man's ending hs speech.

Later, while talking to the Chief, the politician noticed an odd breed of horses grazing in a nearby field. Explaining his interest he asked if he could walk among them and look them over. "Sure, you can," replied the Chief, "but be careful that you don't step in the Buzzonga!"

I have long been uncertain just what is the correct way to handle small rib lamb chops when dining in polite society, so I put the question to an elderly friend who has been listed in the Social Register since her birth.

When in doubt at the dinner table, her answer was to do as the hostess does. But I then wondered what would be her rule when eating with a friend in a restaurant where she was the hostess. In such a circumstance, she said she did as she pleased. Often she would lift a chop, a chicken leg, or a frog's leg in her fingers if she were adequately fortified with martinis.

A good hostess, she says, tries to make her guests feel comfortable. If a troubled peasant drank the water in his finger bowl, the kind hostess would follow his example, thereby avoiding embarrassment.

STEP Workshops To Be Expanded Nationally

The first in a series of STEP (Solutions to Employment Problems) workshops was held in the tri-city area of Kingsport, Johnson City and Bristol, Tennessee, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The workshop was developed to present speakers with first-hand knowledge of proven programs, and to encourage the application of them more universally at a time of labor shortage, according to Richard C. Cornuelle, NAM Executive Vice President.

In summarizing the first workshop, attended by more than seventy leadieg industrialists, Mr. Cornuelle predicted, "I think that in three or four years we will look back at this meeting as the first in a series that led, not only to an enormous industrial contribution toward the restoration of people's confidence in the independent action, but at the same time, toward the solution of a crucial national problem."

The workshop participants included, Allen Harris, Jr., Executive Vice President Harris Manufacturing Company, Johnson City, A. Wright Elliott, Director of STEP, Dr. Arthur Santora, Head of Industrial Training Service, E. I. DuPont Company, Wilmington, Delaware, Robert Dugger, Vice President of the J. I. Case Company, Racine, Wisconsin, Barbara Jankoski, Education Advisor Basic Systems, Inc., New York; Fred Gray, Director of Industrial Relations, Diamond Alkali, Houston, Texas; and Dr. Cleo Blackburn, Executive Director of the Board of Fundamental Education.

Eisenhower: Ulg. Rhc. Ngl.

It isn't too surprising that the names of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight David Eisenhower appear in the National Social Directory.

After all, so do the names of 17,000 other Americans. And you can't overlook a former president of the United States and commander-in-chief of Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force when you start listing prominent people.

So let's see what the National Social Directory has to say about the Eisenhowers:

Eisenhower, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight David (Mamie G. Dowd) Gettysburg, Pa. USMA'15. Univ. Chev. Bnt. Sul. Mww. Met. Un. Ulg. Cent. Rhc. Kni. Ngl. Crk. Gcgc. Pl. A-N. Shc. Pilg. Mfw. Wash. Cny. Li.

Now, this may be one of the finest tributes ever paid an American leader and his wife. But outside the CIA, the FBI and the decoding whizzes in the State Department, some of it is likely to be lost on the average reader of the National Social Directory - assuming that any reader is so undistinguished as to be average.

Some of us who so far haven't been included among the 17,000 top Americans must be hoping that if and when we do make it, our qualifications for the honor can be presented a little more clearly than the guttural code used to delineate the Eisenhower attainments.

What's the use of being a hot shot if - and, again, you should pardon the expression - the average person can't tell what you've done to earn the rating?

And especially that "Ulg" in the Eisenhower listing. What in the world do you suppose he ever did to earn that?

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY:

Captured documents indicate tide is turning in Vietnam; communists find South Vietnamese becoming hostile; autolobbyists guide Dingell's fight against pollution curbs.

On May 14 Drew Pearson reported from Detroit that Mayor Jerome Cavanagh had separated from his wife. This was emphatically denied by the mayor and denials were carried by many newspapers.

On Oct. 26 Mayor Cavanagh filed for a limited divorce from his wife.

WASHINGTON -- A confidential report to Secretary of State Rusk from Saigon, based largely upon captured documents, has come up with this hopeful but cautious conclusion: "We believe the tide has turned and the enemy strength is on the decline."

Nevertheless, the report warns: "We see no evidence that the enemy has any serious intent to negotiate on terms acceptable to us. There has been some talk of using negotiations as a means of gaining time in which to rebuild his forces."

The fighting in the south, the report states, is becoming "more and more a North Vietnamese war." The latest estimate is that "There are at least 55,000 North Vietnamese in the country with substantial numbers being infiltrated each month."

The report also describes "mounting evidence that the southern - born enemy is rapidly losing heart for the war. Once the enemy was able to recruit about 7,000 men per month from the population. Now we believe fewer than 3,500 are recruited; and many of these are boys 14 and 15 years of age. Women are also being recruited where possible in order to release more men to combat.

"There is evidence of faltering morale and discipline among the southern enemy--the true Viet Cong. There are fewer but significant signs that the northern invader is likewise weakening."

The report cited extracts from captured diaries and letters. One North Vietnamese soldier confided to his diary: "As we go to the south, we are told that we are going to liberate the south, that we will be welcomed, and that we will fight the Americans. But when we arrive, we are not greeted as liberators. When we enter villages, the people ask us to leave. I begin to feel like a leper."

One soldier wrote his parents a letter that was never delivered, declaring: "Today I am in the innermost recesses of a forest in the Western Highlands. Here I live a life without joy, and sometimes I feel like a dead man. We are waiting for [illegible] came to fight, but I have received some bad news. A number of my comrades were killed in battle. I think the same fate is awaiting me."

Some of the conditions described in the captured papers are so horrible that intelligence officers find them hard to believe and attribute them to the stark depression of demoralized men.

"To understand the true significance of the enemy's situation," explains the confidential report to Rusk, "you must realize that the war has taken a subtle but dramatic change over the last few months. The enemy is now steadily losing control of the populated areas. And as in any insurgency, when you begin to lose control of the people, you are beginning to lose the war.

"The enemy's problem then is how to reverse this population loss. He can go on doing what he has been, but this will surely lead to defeat since each day he grows weaker while we grow stronger. . .

"He can make a last ditch try using all or a part of his remaining forces in North Vietnam. Should he do so, the battle would be difficult but the outcome would certainly be his total defeat.

"He could ask for volunteers from China, Russia and other bloc countries, but there is no evidence that either China or Russia is willing to engage us in a ground war."

Out of the steaming jungles, where American troops have been grappling with an elusive and treacherous enemy, have come the first signs perhaps of a still-distant victory.

AIR POLLUTION DEBATE

The clean - air bill to curb exhaust fumes comes up for debate in the house of representatives today (November 2), featuring a battle between Rep. John Dingell, the Detroit Democrat, a disciple of the automobile industry, and Rep. Edward R. Roybal, Los Angeles Democrat, a battler against smog in southern California.

Dingell, who has an altruistic record on most matters, wants to nullify an amendment introduced by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and adopted by the senate, 88 to 0, permitting California to impose stricter standards on automobiles for curbing exhaust fumes than those fixed by the federal government. Murphy and Roybal argue that California is several years ahead of Washington in curbing automobile exhaust.

California, say the West Coast congressmen, has no objection to seeing the federal government set standards, but it doesn't want to be held back by those standards.

The man who has masterminded congressman Dingell's lobbying move is Lloyd Cutler, Attorney for the auto industry and one of the smartest lawyers in Washington. Cutler is Adroit at pulling wires, but he has sometimes pulled too hard and in the wrong places.

Last summer, for instance, he turned up in the office of Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin of San Diego, accompanied by a representative of Kaiser industries. It happens that Kaiser industries is a major client of Lloyd Cutler, and also has a shipyard in Van Deerlin's district. Thus Cutler was taking the representative of one client and using him to pressure the congressman on behalf of another client. Van Deerlin was outraged. Last week he retaliated with a speech on the house floor in which he denounced the auto lobby.

"Far too long," he said, "the auto industry, swaggering through our house office building with high-handed lobbyists-- some of them paid up to $100 an hour -- has sought to impose the auto industry's selfish interest."

Van Deerlin called it an "arrogant campaign" and described the lobbyists as a "swarm from Detroit zeroing in on the clean-air act."

"I invite colleagues to join in rolling back the pall of smog which these slick operators have sought to spread," said the congressman from southern California.

HARLEM BY THE SEA:

Plan Huge Negro Marina-Housing Complexes In Ghettes of Cities Across Nation

New York: - Big Joe Overton, once a Harlem slum kid to whom 155 cents was a lot of money, now is well on his way to raising $155 million.

At middle age now, Overton is a head starter. He's keen on self - help, hates handouts and rhetoric. For some time now, Overton, head of the vintage Negro Labor Committee, has been putting Harlem kids into buses and running them down to Mississippi so they can see the lush delta land and good earth from which many of their people came. Sometimes the children would be driven north to Maine to romp beside unpolluted lades.

Now Overton and a band of colleagues are bringing the fresh air, the clean water, the savannahs right to the edge of the black ghetto. That's where the $155 million comes in. And probably Columbia University too.

Together they plan to build the first ghetto marina in the land. It will run along the Hudson, on Manhattan's upper West Side.

"There will be riverside promenades, tree-shaded walks, parks, piers for small boats, swimming pools and waterside restaurants," Overton said the other day as we sat in my studio waiting to go "on mike."

"We've the blueprints," the big Negro leader added. "If it's good enough for Cannes and Nice, it's good enough for Manhattan. We've plans for sited of 15 acres each across town and in the Bronx."

It was all very calmly said, just as Overton had first told me some years back that there would be a peaceful freedom march in Washington led by AFL-CIO vice-president A. Philip Randolph. There were 200,000. They came. They listened. They dispersed. Overton and his fellows were in the background and let the others take credit in the Negro committies.

Now in the street-sledged accent of a kid up from the asphalt jungles, Overton said this marina project was "just the beginning of real self-help."

It would work at Harlem's edge and would bring peace to many a turbulent neighborhood here -- and across the country.

Overton does not deal in dreams. But he said that after Harlem there were plans for similar marinas in Newark, Detroit, Milwaukee, two cities in Florida, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Youngstown, O. There are waterfronts in most of those cities he asserted, and where there are not, we'll create them with swimming pools and a chance for good living.

Overton's scheme of things to come until now has not been made public. So he answered cautiously. There still was the matter of some millions. There still was a portfolio of mortgages. There still were big insurance companies and banks with which to deal -- financial institutions which were ready to throw in heavy money if it were responsibly handled.

"We're now talking with representatives from Columbia University," Overton revealed. "And there are businessmen too. We'll rip out slums and rotting piers. We'll have housing and shops and factories. All clean. There will be some 2,700 low and medium income apartments for large and small families. There will be stores and small manufacturing shops and tiny factories. But nothing that will pollute the air."

The goal is to create 15,000 jobs in small plants -- within walking distance of the marina complex. But none of these plants will burn industrial fuel. This would mean plants for cutting of garments, assembling appliances, handling of apparel, etc.

The sheer task of constructing the park-laden, housing-shopping center-amusement-factory complex will create tens of thousands of jobs. There will be the sensitive problem of integrating the construction work force. This is a "black" project and the Negro community will want its share of the highly paid construction jobs.

The problem then is to find the skilled Negroes. Recently AFL-CIO president George Meany disclosed that the New York construction trades unions had opened their lists several years ago for 1,000 minority apprentices. In the past two years only 300 Negroes and Puerto Ricans had applied. The young man want "status" and white collar jobs. The older men don't have the skills for today's modern construction work. So Overton and his colleagues will go out to find them, train them and make certain that no problem pops up for every solution.

The rest of the country "from here to Watts," says Overton, will be "watching us."

"This time we're going to prove we can help ourselves."

Joe Overton has never read the Greek classics, but in his fashion he spoke as did Alcaeus when the ancient one said:

"Not houses finely roofed or the stones of walls well-builded, nay nor canals and dockyards make the city, but men able to use their opportunity."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Others may do it but the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is the only one from our own observation that honors the community's outstanding women annually.

The habit of honoring men appears to come more naturally and to be more universally followed.

Many men have motives that aren't entirely unselfish in becoming civic leaders. Their activity may extend their acquaintance and help their business. It may advance a political career. It may be a source of self gratification.

Feminine motives may be self seeking and selfish, in at least a sense, too, but there is more unselfish community work by women than by men.

It is comforting to believe that women are more compassionate and generous by nature than men but one reason that they do more may be because fewer of them are breadwinners and have more time to assist others.

Whatever the reason many women serve their communities notably and it is gratifying to observe that in Sikeston some of their achievements get recognition.

Those selected this year for harvest awards maintain the highest traditions of the annual recognition -- Mrs. Wilma Young, Mrs. Della Poe, Mrs. Evelyn Barnett and Dr. Thelma Buckthorpe.

Through their service others will be inspired to pick up the torch.

MA BELL'S BLUES

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company on Wednesday, Nov. 1, proposes to cut its cross-country rates by an annual rate of $100 million. Another $20 million cut is schedule, under Federal Communications Commission orders, for May 1.

There's a hitch. New Jersey has asked the FCC to postpone a $15 million boost on so-called short-haul interstate phone rates, also scheduled for Nov. 1. New Jersey wants public hearings on the proposed changes. The Bell System on Oct. 23 asserted that if the FCC should suspend the short-haul boosts, it would seek to narrow cuts in long-distance tolls.

The Bell System has about 80 million telephones in service. Actually, if the full cut FCC has ordered goes into effect, the saving per phone will average out to about $1.50 a year.

Meanwhile, since the FCC announced an investigation of Bell rates and operations two years ago (Oct. 27, 1965), some three million A.T.&T. shareholders have seen their stock drop from 66-7/8 to about 51 -- a matter of more than $7 billion. The damage may not be over, either, because leading mutual funds are said (New York Times, Oct. 26) to be dumping large blocs of the stock -- "throwing in the sponge" on Mother Bell.

THE VIOLENT SOCIETY

A SPATE OF VIOLENCE is surfacing in our society. Witness the following blurbs for current motion pictures, quoted from reviews and proudly advertised:

"The original and wildest film of the Hell's Angels Cult."

"A prolonged game of sadism. . . knowing, smirking hints of the perverse. . . peeling away layers of hypocrisy."

"It's dirty -- a combination of lust, impotency, vulgarity, nudity, neurosis, brutality, voyeurism, hatred and insanity that culminates in murder."

The films thus advertised are not really the ones being singled out as violent. This distinction is reserved for The Dirty Dozen, Bonnie and Clyde, The St. Valentine's Day Massacre, and In Cold Blood, which will be released later this year. In the making is The Boston Strangler.

THE MOTION PICTURE, of course, always has been a violent art and/or industry. Hollywood scandals have vied for violence with the gangster pictures of the 1930's, the miles of blood guff about World War I, or the "savage rage" of the more recent Dr. Strangelove.

but almost a mystique has been growing up about violence on the screen, stage, and television. In a columns-long review of Bonnie and Clyde, Pauline Kael in The New Yorker even gives a forthright justification: "It is a kind of violence that says something to us; it is something that movies must be free to use. And it is just because artists must be free to use violence -- a legal right that is beginning to come under attack -- that we must also defend the legal rights of those filmmakers who use violence to sell tickets, for it is not the province of the law to decide that one man is an artist and another man a no-talent."

Congressional committees have investigated violence on television but with little effect. The Broadway stage is alive with turbulent and furious action. Apparently the same is true in Britain. Martin Esslin writes: "Only the shocking and the sensational, which could not possibly be shown to mass audiences, remain as a never failing magnet for (stage) audiences."

ANOTHER WRITER in The New Yorker observes -- on another tangent: "I do not know why our popular culture is so hung up on violence. I think it may have less to do with the need for violence than with the third-rateness of the culture and with the kind of talent that turns out all this awful stuff. . . An exchange of gunfire can be more easily convincingly dramatized than a clash of human wills. And, of course, people go for it -- but not just Americans."

Corneille said that violence was right "where mildness is in vain." Recent civil rights demonstrations have spilled over into violence. And one alarming word from the recent Washington march is that "demonstrations are all over. . . from now on, it's la bombe plastique."

H. Rap Brown, the militant civil rights leader, said a few weeks ago: "Violence is as American as cherry pie." Stanley Kauffmann writes of the remark: "Political columnists and book reviewers and ministers and editorial writers have used it as promptly and easily as if they had been born knowing it." A group of delegates to the U. S. Conference on Church and Society asserted on Oct. 24 that violence is "an inherent fact in our society" and urged churches to identify with victims of violence.

We cannot help but think what a hell of a mess we have made of this world compared to what it was when we were at that age.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

One of the nice things about having a teen-ager in the home is that you never have to bother about wiping cobwebs or dust off the telephone.

Nothing looks happier than a small fat girl who has finally mastered the difficult art of keeping a hula hoop in motion around her chubby body.

It is time to leave a cocktail party when the guests begin to cluster and talk in authoritative tones about what should be done in Vietnam and which Republican should be nominated for president in 1968.

Bluebirds have become so scarce lately that they should put a few in zoo aviaries so children won't grow up without ever having seen one of the loveliest of nature's feathered creatures.

After 60, a fellow always feels like crying inside when someone sends him one of those "funny" birthday cards. He regards himself as a living landmark and expects respect from others, not cleverness, on his anniversaries.

It makes me sad to see a man who not only wears a toupee but also has an artificial flower pinned in his lapel. You have to give him credit for hope, but you can't escape the conviction he's a bit out of touch with reality.

On the other hand, whenever you see a man walking majestically in front of his wife as she pushes a shopping cart through the supermarket, you get a conviction that the American male still has a future.

People who habitually watch television more than three hours every day eventually get the same fixed expression on their faces as those riding to or from work on the subway.

There is no point in the wife of a professional football fan getting a divorce between now and the middle of next January as her husband wouldn't even notice it had happened.

A woman's sense of financial security depends on the number of expensive hats she can't afford to buy but does; a man's depends on how many pairs of shoes he has in his closet.

There is great worry today about the manner in which man is poisoning the very atmosphere he breathes. Between bad air and hot air we're all in peril.

It would be a real irony of time if future archeologists should judge the art level reached by our civilization by the beauty of Christmas liquor bottles they dig up from the debris we leave in passing.

You are probably a success in the business world if you spend more time dictating memos than in answering them.

If a neighbor tells you he just noticed your wife has one blue eye and one brown eye, it's time to build a fence or move to a new neighborhood.

A tactful clothing salesman who wants to sell a customer a suit in another size never tells him that he has gained weight. He says, "Well, you've just normally got big shoulders there— bigger than most."

Her employer, being a kindly woman, said, "Don't worry dear, have the child and I will adopt it."

A year and a half went by and the maid approached her employer, saying, "Mrs. Smith, I'm with child again."

Her employer was annoyed but didn't want to loose the girl's services, so she adopted the second child too. Three months after the birth of the second baby, the maid came to the woman and said, "I'm sorry Mrs. Smith, but I must leave. I couldn't possibly work for a woman with two children."

Buzzonga!" thundered the Indians, the excited squaws holding their papooses in the air to better see the speaker. "We will teach all citizens to have tolerance and understanding. . ." kept on the candidate. "Buzzonga! Buzzonga!" roared the tribe in tribute to the white man's ending hs speech.

I have long been uncertain just what is the correct way to handle small rib lamb chops when dining in polite society, so I put the question to an elderly friend who has been listed in the Social Register since her birth.

When in doubt at the dinner table, her answer was to do as the hostess does. But I then wondered what would be her rule when eating with a friend in a restaurant where she was the hostess. In such a circumstance, she said she did as she pleased. Often she would lift a chop, a chicken leg, or a frog's leg in her fingers if she were adequately fortified with martinis.

A good hostess, she says, tries to make her guests feel comfortable. If a troubled peasant drank the water in his finger bowl, the kind hostess would follow his example, thereby avoiding embarrassment.

STEP Workshops To Be Expanded Nationally

The first in a series of STEP (Solutions to Employment Problems) workshops was held in the tri-city area of Kingsport, Johnson City and Bristol, Tennessee, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The workshop was developed to present speakers with first-hand knowledge of proven programs, and to encourage the application of them more universally at a time of labor shortage, according to Richard C. Cornuelle, NAM Executive Vice President.

In summarizing the first workshop, attended by more than seventy leadicg industrialists, Mr. Cornuelle predicted, "I think that in three or four years we will look back at this meeting as the first in a series that led, not only to an enormous industrial contribution toward the restoration of people's confidence in the independent action, but at the same time, toward the solution of a crucial national problem."

It isn't too surprising that the names of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight David Eisenhower appear in the National Social Directory.

After all, so do the names of 17,000 other Americans. And you can't overlook a former president of the United States and commander-in-chief of Supreme Headquarters Allied Expenditionary Force when you start listing prominent people.

So let's see what the National Social Directory has to say about the Eisenhowers:

Eisenhower, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight David (Mamie G. Dowd) Gettysburg, Pa. USMA'15. Univ. Chev. Bnt. Sul. Mww. Met. Un. Ulg. Cent. Rhc. Kni. Ngl. Crk. Gcgc. Pl. A-N. Shc. Pilg. Mfw. Wash. Cny. Li.

Now, this may be one of the finest tributes ever paid an American leader and his wife. But outside the CIA, the FBI and the decoding whizzes in the State Department, some of it is likely to be lost on the average reader of the National Social Directory - assuming that any reader is so undistinguished as to be average.

Some of us who so far haven't been included among the 17,000 top Americans must be hoping that if and when we do make it, our qualifications for the honor can be presented a little more clearly than the guttural code used to delineate the Eisenhower attainments.

What's the use of being a hot shot if - and, again, you should pardon the expression - the average person can't tell what you've done to earn the rating?

And especially that "Ulg" in the Eisenhower listing. What in the world do you suppose he ever did to earn that?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY:

Captured documents indicate tide is turning in Vietnam; communists find South Vietnamese becoming hostile; autolobbyists guide Dingell's fight against pollution curbs.

On May 14 Drew Pearson reported from Detroit that Mayor Jerome Cavanagh had separated from his wife. This was emphatically denied by the mayor and denials were carried by many newspapers.

WASHINGTON -- A confidential report to Secretary of State Rusk from Saigon, based largely upon captured documents, has come up with this hopeful but cautious conclusion: "We believe the tide has turned and the enemy strength is on the decline."

Nevertheless, the report warns: "We see no evidence that the enemy has any serious intent to negotiate on terms acceptable to us. There has been some talk of using negotiations as a means of gaining time in which to rebuild his forces."

The fighting in the south, the report states, is becoming "more and more a North Vietnamese war." The latest estimate is that "There are at least 55,000 North Vietnamese in the country with substantial numbers being infiltrated each month."

The report also describes "mounting evidence that the southern - born enemy is rapidly losing heart for the war. Once the enemy was able to recruit about 7,000 men per month from the population. Now we believe fewer than 3,500 are recruited; and many of these are boys 14 and 15 years of age. Women are also being recruited where possible in order to release more men to combat.

"There is evidence of faltering morale and discipline among the southern enemy--the true Viet Cong. There are fewer but significant signs that the northern invader is likewise weakening."

The report cited extracts from captured diaries and letters. One North Vietnamese soldier confided to his diary: "As we go to the south, we are told that we are going to liberate the south, that we will be welcomed, and that we will fight the Americans. But when we arrive, we are not greeted as liberators. When we enter villages, the people ask us to leave. I begin to feel like a leper."

One soldier wrote his parents a letter that was never delivered, declaring: "Today I am in the innermost recesses of a forest in the Western Highlands. Here I live a life without joy, and sometimes I feel like a dead man. We are waiting for [illegible] to fight, but I have received some bad news. A number of my comrades were killed in battle. I think the same fate is awaiting me."

Some of the conditions described in the captured papers are so horrible that intelligence officers find them hard to believe and attribute them to the stark depression of demoralized men.

"To understand the true significance of the enemy's situation," explains the confidential report to Rusk, "you must realize that the war has taken a subtle but dramatic change over the last few months. The enemy is now steadily losing control of the populated areas. And as in any insurgency, when you begin to lose control of the people, you are beginning to lose the war.

"The enemy's problem then is how to reverse this population loss. He can go on doing what he has been, but this will surely lead to defeat since each day he grows weaker while we grow stronger. . .

"He can make a last ditch try using all or a part of his remaining forces in North Vietnam. Should he do so, the battle would be difficult but the outcome would certainly be his total defeat.

"He could ask for volunteers from China, Russia and other bloc countries, but there is no evidence that either China or Russia is willing to engage us in a ground war."

Out of the steaming jungles, where American troops have been grappling with an elusive and treacherous enemy, have come the first signs perhaps of a still-distant victory.

AIR POLLUTION DEBATE

The clean - air bill to curb exhaust fumes comes up for debate in the house of representatives today (November 2), featuring a battle between Rep. John Dingell, the Detroit Democrat, a disciple of the automobile industry, and Rep. Edward R. Roybal, Los Angeles Democrat, a battler against smog in southern California.

Dingell, who has an altruistic record on most matters, wants to nullify an amendment introduced by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and adopted by the senate, 88 to 0, permitting California to impose stricter standards on automobiles for curbing exhaust fumes than those fixed by the federal government. Murphy and Roybal argue that California is several years ahead of Washington in curbing automobile exhaust.

California, say the West Coast congressmen, has no objection to seeing the federal government set standards, but it doesn't want to be held back by those standards.

The man who has masterminded congressman Dingell's lobbying move is Lloyd Cutler, Attorney for the auto industry and one of the smartest lawyers in Washington. Cutler is Adroit at pulling wires, but he has sometimes pulled too hard and in the wrong places.

Last summer, for instance, he turned up in the office of Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin of San Diego, accompanied by a representative of Kaiser industries. It happens that Kaiser industries is a major client of Lloyd Cutler, and also has a shipyard in Van Deerlin's district. Thus Cutler was taking the representative of one client and using him to pressure the congressman on behalf of another client. Van Deerlin was outraged. Last week he retaliated with a speech on the house floor in which he denounced the auto lobby.

"Far too long," he said, "the auto industry, swaggering through our house office building with high-handed lobbyists--some of them paid up to $100 an hour -- has sought to impose the auto industry's selfish interest."

Van Deerlin called it an "arrogant campaign" and described the lobbyists as a "swarm from Detroit zeroing in on the clean-air act."

"I invite colleagues to join in rolling back the pall of smog which these slick operators have sought to spread," said the congressman from southern California.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

HARLEM BY THE SEA:

Plan Huge Negro Marina-Housing Complexes In Ghettos of Cities Across Nation

At middle age now, Overton is a head starter. He's keen on self - help, hates handouts and rhetoric. For some time now, Overton, head of the vintage Negro Labor Committee, has been putting Harlem kids into buses and running them down to Mississippi so they can see the lush delta land and good earth from which many of their people came. Sometimes the children would be driven north to Maine to romp beside unpolluted lades.

Now Overton and a band of colleagues are bringing the fresh air, the clean water, the savannahs right to the edge of the black ghetto. That's where the $155 million comes in. And probably Columbia University too.

Together they plan to build the first ghetto marina in the land. It will run along the Hudson, on Manhattan's upper West Side.

"There will be riverside promenades, tree-shaded walks, parks, piers for small boats, swimming pools and waterside restaurants," Overton said the other day as we sat in my studio waiting to go "on mike."

"We've the blueprints," the big Negro leader added. "If it's good enough for Cannes and Nice, it's good enough for Manhattan. We've plans for sited of 15 acres each across town and in the Bronx."

It was all very calmly said, just as Overton had first told me some years back that there would be a peaceful freedom march in Washington led by AFL-CIO vice-president A. Philip Randolph. There were 200,000. They came. They listened. They dispersed. Overton and his fellows were in the background and let the others take credit in the Negro committies.

Now in the street-sledged accent of a kid up from the asphalt jungles, Overton said this marina project was "just the beginning of real self-help."

It would work at Harlem's edge and would bring peace to many a turbulent neighborhood here -- and across the country.

Overton does not deal in dreams. But he said that after Harlem there were plans for similar marinas in Newark, Detroit, Milwaukee, two cities in Florida, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Youngstown, O. There are waterfronts in most of those cities he asserted, and where there are not, we'll create them with swim-ming pools and a chance for good living.

Overton's scheme of things to come until now has not been made public. So he answered cautiously. There still was the matter of some millions. There still was a portfolio of mortgages. There still were big insurance companies and banks with which to deal -- financial institutions which were ready to throw in heavy money if it were responsibly handled.

"We're now talking with representatives from Columbia University," Overton revealed. "And there are businessmen too. We'll rip out slums and rotting piers. We'll have housing and shops and factories. All clean. There will be some 2,700 low and medium income apartments for large and small families. There will be stores and small manufacturing shops and tiny factories. But nothing that will pollute the air."

The goal is to create 15,000 jobs in small plants -- within walking distance of the marina complex. But none of these plants will burn industrial fuel. This would mean plants for cutting of garments, assembling appliances, handling of apparel, etc.

The sheer task of constructing the park-laden, housing-shopping center-amusement-factory complex will create tens of thousands of jobs. There will be the sensitive problem of integrating the construction work force. This is a "black" project and the Negro community will want its share of the highly paid construction jobs.

The problem then is to find the skilled Negroes. Recently AFL-CIO president George Meany disclosed that the New York construction trades unions had opened their lists several years ago for 1,000 minority apprentices. In the past two years only 300 Negroes and Puerto Ricans had applied. The young man want "status" and white collar jobs. The older men don't have the skills for today's modern construction work. So Overton and his colleagues will go out to find them, train them and make certain that no problem pops up for every solution.

The rest of the country "from here to Watts," says Overton, will be "watching us."

"This time we're going to prove we can help ourselves."

Joe Overton has never read the Greek classics, but in his fashion he spoke as did Alcaeus when the ancient one said:

"Not houses finely roofed or the stones of walls well-builded, nay nor canals and dockyards make the city, but men able to use their opportunity."

Leaders Prepare For Clash

Season End Nearing

Conference leaders in northern and southern divisions step out of league football action this weekend. They will be preparing for their title bouts next week.

Northern division leader Sikeston will play host to a rough Blytheville, Ark., eleven. Runner-up Poplar Bluff will be in a host role when Jefferson City calls. Sikeston and Poplar Bluff meet to decide the league title Nov. 10.

Malden and Dexter, co-southern leaders are expected to have easy going. Malden is at home to Illmo-Scott City and Dexter goes to Kennett. Both southern division opponents are winless this season.

Four conference games, two in the southern division and two in the northern are slated for Friday night, but neither will have any bearing on top two positions in league standings.

Southern division action centers around Chaffee and Hayti. Caruthersville goes to Red Devil country. The Indians will be host to the Portageville Bulldogs.

Conference games could throw the final five positions in each conference into a mixer. In the north, a Charleston win would move the Bluejays into third place. A Perryville victory would give the Pirates a tie with the Jays for third. A loss by either would drop them from a fourth place tie, each having 2-2 conference slates while Cape is 2-1. A Jackson victory would push them into a fifth place tie with either the Pirates or Jays.

The southern division game at Chaffee is a must for the Tigers. A victory would leave them in third place with a 4-2 mark. They are 3-2.

A Caruthersville loss and a Portageville win would make it a three-way tie, Caruthersville, Portageville and Chaffee.

The other district game will find East Prairie at Cairo.

Next week's championship battles are at Poplar Bluff, where Sikeston calls, and at Dexter, where the Malden Green Wave visits.

Mizzou Meets OSU

COLUMBIA -- Will Oklahoma State's stunning upset of Colorado inspire the Pokes to an even greater effort against Mizzou this Saturday at Stillwater?

Not in Tiger coach Dan Devine's book.

"I don't think it will make any difference," Devine said this week. "OSU is always double-tough for Missouri."

However, down in Stallwater motivation probably will run high for both squads. Phil Cuthcins' Cowpokes hope to maintain their Colorado. Missouri is looking for a bounce-back win after losing a hard-fought 7-0 decision to Oklahoma.

More of the same head-knocking action is in store for the Tigers when they meet another bruiser from the Sooner State before an estimated crowd of 30,000 in Lewis Stadium. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

Missouri and Oklahoma State are reminiscent of each other in their style of play. Both squads feature hard-shelled defenses. On offense neither team is noted for boasting a quick strike or a fancy attack.

Last season in Columbia, the two teams played their typical hard-nosed content. The big break came when Missouri halfback Ray Thrope grabbed a lateral from quarterback Gary Kombrink and scampered 42 yards for the lone score in the Bengals' 7-0 victory.

This year Missouri is 4-2 but just 1-2 in the Big Eight with Colorado and Oklahoma providing the notations on the debit side. The Cowpokes, 2-2-1 overall, have broken even in the conference defeating Colorado and losing to Kansas.

The boost for OSU against Colorado was having quarterback Ronnie Johnson back in action after timely recovery from a broken wrist Johnson, like Missouri's Kombrink, is a quick, elusive runner. It was his 23-yard jaunt after a bad snap on a punt attempt which provided the clincher last week.

Johnson receives assistance from halfback Larry Gosney and fullback Jack Reynolds. Neither is dominant in size but the Cowpoke backs bulldozed for 232 yards against Colorado.

Even more surprising was the way OSU's defense bottled up the powerful Colorado offense. State's small but rugged stoppers are led by halfback Harry Cheatwood, the Pokes' leading tackler in the secondary last year despite missing half the season.

Missouri is coming off a stellar defensive performance in spite of the lack of firepower on offense. The point-preventing front line is hurting. Guard Carl Garber and tackle Curt Jones are available but may be playing at less than full speed.

On offense the Tigers also have been forced to make some adjustments. Rogert Short figures to replace tackle Mike Wempe who is out with a pinched neck nerve. At guard, sophomore Joe Clark has moved into the starting picture ahead of Jim Willsey.

Flashy halfback Jon Staggers has begun working out for the first time after a shoulder separation sidelined him four weeks ago. However, Staggers is only a "remote possibility" to see action against OSU.

O-State coach Phil Cutchin reminded his team that it hasn't scored on Missouri since 1964 when it beat the Tigers, 10-7 in Columbia. The Tigers have won all but two of the previous 13 contests.

KICKOFF: 1:30 p.m. at Lewis Stadium, Stillwater; EXPECTED ATTENDANCE: 30,000; OFFENSIVE FORMATIONS Oklahoma State - Slot, both I and regular; Missouri - Wing T, unbalanced line; MISSOURI HEADQUARTERS: Student Union, Stillwater.

SERIES RECORD: Missouri won 11, Oklahoma State 2, no ties.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Max Schmelling is the only fighter in the world ever to win a title while on canvas? The German took the crown from Sharkey when he cried "foul" in the fourth round after being obviously outclassed from the state. A year later Sharkey thoroughly whipped the Nazi champ.

DID YOU KNOW -- that in the last Davis Cup match before the war, Australia introduced two cross-handed racket-wielders . . Bromwich and Quist, both of whom could swing a tennis racket with either hand, and at times reverted to the two-hand cross-over swing.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the old New York Giants' pitcher of 1904, George "Hooks" Wiltse, stepped into the big parade that season and proceeded to cop his first 13 games in the major leagues, a record that stands today? And included in this rookie's record that first season was the game of games for any hurler. For "Hooks" Wiltse hurled a ten-inning no hit, no-run game for the McGrawmen. The record of 13 straight for a rookie is still some record. . . the best there is!

A-State At Home Saturday

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Arkansas State University's Indians will be trying to get on the plus side of the ledger this Saturday when they host the University of Southwestern Louisiana at Kays Stadium in a 2 p.m. game.

It will be a non-conference game but both teams are fresh from league losses. Arkansas State lost a thriller to Lamar Tech at Beaumont last weekend 28-23 while USL was losing to Northeast Louisiana 17-6 before a hometown crowd.

USL has a 4-3 record including wins over Louisiana College 28-14, Pensacola Navy 13-3, Louisiana Tech 20-14 and Southeastern Louisiana 9-0 and losses to Lamar Tech 14-13, Memphis State 28-6 and Northeast Louisiana.

The Ragin' Cajuns are led in scoring by freshman Roy Pendergraft who has kicked seven of eight extra points and eight field goals for a total of 31 points. His eight field goals set a Gulf States Conference Record.

Offensively, USL is led by quarterback Mickey Bergeron and tailback Jim Barton. Bergeron has completed 25 of 53 passes for 342 yards, allowing only one interception. Barton has carried 87 times for 310 yards and a 3.6 average.

Arkansas State will counter with the passing of Cecil LaGrone and the running of halfback Frank McGuigan and fullback Steve Gankiewicz.

LaGrone has completed 52 of 102 passes for 689 yards while McGuigan has gained 342 yards on 86 carries for a 4.0 average. Gankiewicz, the Indians' leading scorer with 42 points, has gained 308 yards on 70 carries for a 4.4 average.

On the receiving end of LaGrone's aerials will be Gerald Jumper who has caught 32 for 479 yards, Benny Winford with 19 receptions for 192 yards and Virgil Peyton who has 16 for 211 yards and two touchdowns.

The Tribe defense, led by the linebacking duo of Tommy Sain and Bill Bergey and tackle Clovis Swinney, have limited opponents to 269 yards a game while recovering six fumbles and intercepting 13 passes.

The Indians have a 3-3 record with wins over Western Michigan 21-8, Tennessee Tech 15-7 and Abilene Christian 24-14 and losses to The Citadel 20-7, Louisiana Tech 6-3 and Lamar Tech 28-23.

"Its All On The Line" At Memphis

All will be part of the game Saturday when Memphis State hosts Flordia State at Memorial Stadium. The contest will be regionally televised by ABC as part of the NCAA college football package. Kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m.

The game matches Dixie's two hottest football independents. Memphis State is two-thirds of the way through its season with a 5-1 record and fresh from an impressive victory over tough Southern Missiaaippi.

Florida State, facing a wicked schedule, was slow getting out of the blocks but the Seminoles have done nothing but win in recent weeks. They own four straight victories and a record of 4-2-1.

The winner is sure to move up considerable in national rankings. Florida State is already in the top 20 in most polls. Memphis State had a lofty national position after beating Ole Miss in the opener but the Tigers slipped badly after an upset by Utah State.

And those bowl committees, always looking for colorful teams with exceptional records, are sure to have their eyes on this game.

Memphis State jumped away to a 24-0 lead in the second and third periods. The Tigers were more impressive during those quarters than any time since their opening win over the Rebels.

Sophomore quarterback Ricky Thurow engineered all three touchdowns. He threw scoring passes to Bob Baxter (37yards) and Mickey Duncan (8 yards) and sent tailback Nick Pappas in from nine yards out on the option play. Wood Stevens kicked a 28-yard field goal.

Especially encouraging was the manner in which the Tigers moved the football against Southern's stingy defense. Only Alabama, with 25 points, scored more on the Southerners this year and Memphis State blew a great chance to better that when they failed to score with first and goal from the two.

Murphy Sez - Tiger Coach Billy (Spook) Murphy was "well pleased" with the victory: "I thought it was a great effort. We were ready to play and it's a good thing because Southern hit us just as hard as they always do. It was a typical Memphis State - Southern game."

"I was real happy with our offense. I though the defense played well, especially the defensive backs. It was a game we had to win and we did. I was disappointed with two things: the long touchdown pass they threw, and our failure to score when we had the ball at their two with four shots to get it in the end zone."

"As far as the game with Florida State - I think it's going to be wide open with lots of action and excitment. I look for a great game. We know what they are going to do: they'll throw the football, throw the football, then throw it again."

Scouting Report - Coach Murphy obviously has Florida State well scouted. The Seminoles have thrown 253 passes in seven games (an average of 36 a game) and have completed 130 for 11 touchdowns and 1626 yards.

Top trigger man is Kim Hammond (92 of 165 for 1217 yards and nine TDs). Top receiver, as very good football fan should know, is Ron Sellers. His figures are 49 receptions for 785 yards and four touchdowns.

In the last four games Florida State has whipped Texas A&M 19-18, South Carolina 17-0, Texas Tech 28-12 and Mississippi State 24-12. The Seminoles' only two losses were to unbeaten North Carolina State 20-10 and explosive Houston 33-13. The tie was with Alabama 37-37.

Different Styles - To say Memphis State does not throw as much as Florida State is understating the comparison.

SEMO State Meets Southwest

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Leading the conference with a 3-0 record, Southeast Missouri State College hopes to make it four as the Indians travel to Springfield this weekend to meet the defending MIAA conference champs. Last season the Bears of Southwest Missouri State killed Indian hopes for the crown by defeation Southeast 20-7.

Southwest will go into Saturday's contest with a 4-3 record overall, and a conference record of 2-1, their lone conference loss coming at the hands of a strong Kirksville eleven. The Bears still figure strongly in the conference race. A win over Southeast and Warrensburg would result in a 2-way tie between Southwest and Southeast if the Indians defeat Kirksville. With a little help from Kirksville, Southwest could very easily cop their second consecutive title.

Saturday is homecoming for the Bears, adding incentive to an already fired-up Southwest squad.

The Bears feature a well-balanced team, led by the passing of senior quarterback Tom Young and the running of backs Tom Gold and Ardie McCoy. Young is ranked second in conference passing, with 37 completions in 77 attempts for 426 yards. Last week a tough Maryville defense did not allow Young to complete a pass.

Senior tailback Ardie McCoy leads conference rushers in total yardage. McCoy has rushed 149 times, picking up 678 yards. Running with McCoy is fullback Mike Howell, with 115 yards in 32 carries, and halfback Tom Gold, who has rushed for 333 yards in 71 attempts.

In conference play, Southwest has beaten Rolla 21-9, and Maryville 7-6. They were beaten by Kirksville 16-0.

Ducks Plentiful. . .Weather Good

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- From Squaw Creek Refuge in northwestern Missouri to Duck Creek's public hunting area near Puxico in southeastern Missouri, duck hunters had a fine opening of their 40-day season Wednesday.

State Conservation Department reports indicated there were lots of ducks and good shooting almost everywhere.

Flood waters troubled hunters and filled blinds in the Swan Lake-Fountain Grove areas but hunters took to the nearby pin-oak flats and swamps were the ducks were foraging.

At the Timble Wildlife Area between Kansas City and St. Joseph the average kill was nearly four ducks hunter.

The season ends Dec. 10.

Meanwhile it became apparent the goose season at Swan Lake probably will close early, as it did last year. In the first 12 days of hunting, more than 13,000 geese were killed. When the harvest reaches 25,000 in the Swan Lake zone, the federal Fish and Wildlife Service will close goose hunting there.

The State Conservation Department reported things were in just about the best shape possible along the upper Mississippi where the ducks were plentiful, the weather was good and the hunters were out in great force.

Biggest problem there, apparently, was the difference in shooting hours between Missouri and Illinois. On the Missouri side of the river shooting started legally a half hour before sunrise. On the Illinois side shooting wasn't legal until sunrise.

High water along the North Grand River plagued hunters in much of the Swan Lake zone where duck shooting became legal for the first time this year and the goose hunt went into its 13th day.

The department said 47 blinds were in use at Fountain Grove public hunting area within the zone but seven pits, usually occupied by goose hunters, were flooded.

The high water also flooded some pin oak flats outside the public area and drew off a lot of fowl. The birds were spread out more than had been expected.

Twenty goose pits at the Swan Lake refuge also were flooded, reducing the number available there to about 40.

But this was the first day that two Canada geese were legal in the zone. For the first 12 days of the season the limit was one a day. The idea was to ease the big birds into the hunting harvest and spread out the kill.

Despite that and other limiting regulations, the zone kill came to 13,118 in the first 12 days. Under federal regulations goose hunting will be shut down at Swan Lake when the kill reaches 25,000. If the harvest slows down at Swan Lake and in the Squaw Creek zone of northwestern Missouri, the season will run through Dec. 28.

There is no kill limitation at Squaw Creek.

But in the Swan Lake zone, it appeared there would an early closing, as there was last year when the 25,000 bird harvest was achieved before the calendar season ended.

Last season in Columbia, the two teams played their typical hard-nosed content. The big break came when Missouri halfback Ray Thrope grabbed a lateral from quarterback Gary Kombrink and scampered 42 yards for the lone score in the Bengals' 7-0 victory.

This year Missouri is 4-2 but just 1-2 in the Big Eight with Colorado and Oklahoma providing the notations on the debit side. The Cowpokes, 2-2-1 overall, have broken even in the conference defeating Colorado and losing to Kansas.

The boost for OSU against Colorado was having quarterback Ronnie Johnson back in action after timely recovery from a broken wrist Johnson, like Missouri's Kombrink, is a quick, elusive runner. It was his 23-yard jaunt after a bad snap on a punt attempt which provided the clincher last week.

Johnson receives assistance from halfback Larry Gosney and fullback Jack Reynolds. Neither is dominant in size but the Cowpoke backs bulldozed for 232 yards against Colorado.

Even more surprising was the way OSU's defense bottled up the powerful Colorado offense. State's small but rugged stoppers are led by halfback Harry Cheatwood, the Pokes' leading tackler in the secondary last year despite missing half the season.

Missouri is coming off a stellar defensive performance in spite of the lack of firepower on offense. The point-preventing front line is hurting. Guard Carl Garber and tackle Curt Jones are available but may be playing at less than full speed.

On offense the Tigers also have been forced to make some adjustments. Rogert Short figures to replace tackle Mike Wempe who is out with a pinched neck nerve. At guard, sophomore Joe Clark has moved into the starting picture ahead of Jim Willsey.

Flashy halfback Jon Staggers has begun working out for the first time after a shoulder separation sidelined him four weeks ago. However, Staggers is only a "remote possibility" to see action against OSU.

O-State coach Phil Cutchin reminded his team that it hasn't scored on Missouri since 1964 when it beat the Tigers, 10-7 in Columbia. The Tigers have won all but two of the previous 13 contests.

A-State At Home Saturday

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Arkansas State University's Indians will be trying to get on the plus side of the ledger this Saturday when they host the University of Southwestern Louisiana at Kays Stadium in a 2 p.m. game.

It will be a non-conference game but both teams are fresh from league losses. Arkansas State lost a thriller to Lamar Tech at Beaumont last weekend 28-23 while USL was losing to Northeast Louisiana 17-6 before a hometown crowd.

USL has a 4-3 record including wins over Louisiana College 28-14, Pensacola Navy 13-3, Louisiana Tech 20-14 and Southeastern Louisiana 9-0 and losses to Lamar Tech 14-13, Memphis State 28-6 and Northeast Louisiana.

The Ragin' Cajuns are led in scoring by freshman Roy Pendergraft who has kicked seven of eight extra points and eight field goals for a total of 31 points. His eight field goals set a Gulf States Conference Record.

Offensively, USL is led by quarterback Mickey Bergeron and tailback Jim Barton. Bergeron has completed 25 of 53 passes for 342 yards, allowing only one interception. Barton has carried 87 times for 310 yards and a 3.6 average.

Arkansas State will counter with the passing of Cecil LaGrone and the running of halfback Frank McGuigan and fullback Steve Gankiewicz.

LaGrone has completed 52 of 102 passes for 689 yards while McGuigan has gained 342 yards on 86 carries for a 4.0 average. Gankiewicz, the Indians' leading scorer with 42 points, has gained 308 yards on 70 carries for a 4.4 average.

On the receiving end of LaGrone's aerials will be Gerald Jumper who has caught 32 for 479 yards, Benny Winford with 19 receptions for 192 yards and Virgil Peyton who has 16 for 211 yards and two touchdowns.

The Tribe defense, led by the linebacking duo of Tommy Sain and Bill Bergey and tackle Clovis Swinney, have limited opponents to 269 yards a game while recovering six fumbles and intercepting 13 passes.

The Indians have a 3-3 record with wins over Western Michigan 21-8, Tennessee Tech 15-7 and Abilene Christian 24-14 and losses to The Citadel 20-7, Louisiana Tech 6-3 and Lamar Tech 28-23.

"Its All On The Line" At Memphis

All will be part of the game Saturday when Memphis State hosts Flordia State at Memorial Stadium. The contest will be regionally televised by ABC as part of the NCAA college football package. Kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m.

The game matches Dixie's two hottest football independents. Memphis State is two-thirds of the way through its season with a 5-1 record and fresh from an impressive victory over tough Southern Missiaaippi.

Florida State, facing a wicked schedule, was slow getting out of the blocks but the Seminoles have done nothing but win in recent weeks. They own four straight victories and a record of 4-2-1.

The winner is sure to move up considerable in national rankings. Florida State is already in the top 20 in most polls. Memphis State had a lofty national position after beating Ole Miss in the opener but the Tigers slipped badly after an upset by Utah State.

And those bowl committees, always looking for colorful teams with exceptional records, are sure to have their eyes on this game.

Memphis State jumped away to a 24-0 lead in the second and third periods. The Tigers were more impressive during those quarters than any time since their opening win over the Rebels.

Sophomore quarterback Ricky Thurow engineered all three touchdowns. He threw scoring passes to Bob Baxter (37yards) and Mickey Duncan (8 yards) and sent tailback Nick Pappas in from nine yards out on the option play. Wood Stevens kicked a 28-yard field goal.

Especially encouraging was the manner in which the Tigers moved the football against Southern's stingy defense. Only Alabama, with 25 points, scored more on the Southerners this year and Memphis State blew a great chance to better that when they failed to score with first and goal from the two.

Murphy Sez - Tiger Coach Billy (Spook) Murphy was "well pleased" with the victory: "I thought it was a great effort. We were ready to play and it's a good thing because Southern hit us just as hard as they always do. It was a typical Memphis State - Southern game."

"I was real happy with our offense. I though the defense played well, especially the defensive backs. It was a game we had to win and we did. I was disappointed with two things; the long touchdown pass they threw, and our failure to score when we had the ball at their two with four shots to get it in the end zone."

"As far as the game with Florida State - I think it's going to be wide open with lots of action and excitment. I look for a great game. We know what they are going to do; they'll throw the football, throw the football, then throw it again."

Scouting Report - Coach Murphy obviously has Florida State well scouted. The Seminoles have thrown 253 passes in seven games (an average of 36 a game) and have completed 130 for 11 touchdowns and 1626 yards.

Top trigger man is Kim Hammond (92 of 165 for 1217 yards and nine TDs). Top receiver, as very good football fan should know, is Ron Sellers. His figures are 49 receptions for 785 yards and four touchdowns.

In the last four games Florida State has whipped Texas A&M 19-18, South Carolina 17-0, Texas Tech 28-12 and Mississippi State 24-12. The Seminoles' only two losses were to unbeaten North Carolina State 20-10 and explosive Houston 33-13. The tie was with Alabama 37-37.

Different Styles - To say Memphis State does not throw as much as Florida State is understating the comparison.

SEMO State Meets Southwest

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Leading the conference with a 3-0 record, Southeast Missouri State College hopes to make it four as the Indians travel to Springfield this weekend to meet the defending MIAA conference champs. Last season the Bears of Southwest Missouri State killed Indian hopes for the crown by defeation Southeast 20-7.

Southwest will go into Saturday's contest with a 4-3 record overall, and a conference record of 2-1, their lone conference loss coming at the hands of a strong Kirksville eleven. The Bears still figure strongly in the conference race. A win over Southeast and Warrensburg would result in a 2-way tie between Southwest and Southeast if the Indians defeat Kirksville. With a little help from Kirksville, Southwest could very easily cop their second consecutive title.

Saturday is homecoming for the Bears, adding incentive to an already fired-up Southwest squad.

The Bears feature a well-balanced team, led by the passing of senior quarterback Tom Young and the running of backs Tom Gold and Ardie McCoy. Young is ranked second in conference passing, with 37 completions in 77 attempts for 426 yards. Last week a tough Maryville defense did not allow Young to complete a pass.

Senior tailback Ardie McCoy leads conference rushers in total yardage. McCoy has rushed 149 times, picking up 678 yards. Running with McCoy is fullback Mike Howell, with 115 yards in 32 carries, and halfback Tom Gold, who has rushed for 333 yards in 71 attempts.

In conference play, Southwest has beaten Rolla 21-9, and Maryville 7-6. They were beaten by Kirksville 16-0.

Ducks Plentiful. . .Weather Good

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — From Squaw Creek Refuge in northwestern Missouri to Duck Creek's public hunting area near Puxico in southeastern Missouri, duck hunters had a fine opening of their 40-day season Wednesday.

State Conservation Department reports indicated there were lots of ducks and good shooting almost everywhere.

Flood waters troubled hunters and filled blinds in the Swan Lake-Fountain Grove areas but hunters took to the nearby pin-oak flats and swamps were the ducks were foraging.

At the Timble Wildlife Area between Kansas City and St. Joseph the average kill was nearly four ducks hunter.

The season ends Dec. 10.

Meanwhile it became apparent the goose season at Swan Lake probably will close early, as it did last year. In the first 12 days of hunting, more than 13,000 geese were killed. When the harvest reaches 25,000 in the Swan Lake zone, the federal Fish and Wildlife Service will close goose hunting there.

The State Conservation Department reported things were in just about the best shape possible along the upper Mississippi where the ducks were plentiful, the weather was good and the hunters were out in great force.

Biggest problem there, apparently, was the difference in shooting hours between Missouri and Illinois. On the Missouri side of the river shooting started legally a half hour before sunrise. On the Illinois side shooting wasn't legal until sunrise.

High water along the North Grand River plagued hunters in much of the Swan Lake zone where duck shooting became legal for the first time this year and the goose hunt went into its 13th day.

The department said 47 blinds were in use at Fountain Grove public hunting area within the zone but seven pits, usually occupied by goose hunters, were flooded.

The high water also flooded some pin oak flats outside the public area and drew off a lot of fowl. The birds were spread out more than had been expected.

There is no kill limitation at Squaw Creek.

Twenty goose pits at the Swan Lake refuge also were flooded, reducing the number available there to about 40.

But this was the first day that two Canada geese were legal in the zone. For the first 12 days of the season the limit was one a day. The idea was to ease the big birds into the hunting harvest and spread out the kill.

Despite that and other limiting regulations, the zone kill came to 13,118 in the first 12 days. Under federal regulations goose hunting will be shut down at Swan Lake when the kill reaches 25,000. If the harvest slows down at Swan Lake and in the Squaw Creek zone of northwestern Missouri, the season will run through Dec. 28.

But in the Swan Lake zone, it appeared there would an early closing, as there was last year when the 25,000 bird harvest was achieved before the calendar season ended.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Max Schmelling is the only fighter in the world ever to win a title while on canvas? The German took the crown from Sharkey when he cried "foul" in the fourth round after being obviously outclassed from the state. A year later Sharkey thoroughly whipped the Nazi champ.

DID YOU KNOW -- that in the last Davis Cup match before the war, Australia introduced two cross-handed racket-wielders . . Bromwich and Quist, both of whom could swing a tennis racket with either hand, and at times reverted to the two-hand cross-over swing.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the old New York Giants' pitcher of 1904, George "Hooks" Wiltse, stepped into the big parade that season and proceeded to cop his first 13 games in the major leagues, a record that stands today? And included in this rookie's record that first season was the game of games for any hurler. For "Hooks" Wiltse hurled a ten-inning no hit, no-run game for the McGrawmen. The record of 13 straight for a rookie is still some record. . . the best there is!

FUN, ACTION and a place to go where kids can be themselves by themselves sums up the reason why TV's Hullabaloo Scene, a national chain of over 60 dance centers exclusively for 14-18-year-olds, has caught on among the country's young adults of high school age.

Hullabaloo Scene Will Open Friday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Members of the 14 to 20 year old set will have an in-spot of their own, when TV's Hullabaloo Scene opens Friday night at 8 p.m. on highway 61 south.

The new Hullabaloo's the latest in a national chain of 72 such centers in 24 states.

Opening night will be emceed by KGMO's own Rusty Sharpe and will feature "The Great Society," a group of musicians. Also on hand for the grand opening will be two Hullabaloo Dancers from New York City, who will teach area youngsters the latest dance steps.

TV's Hullabaloo Scene got its name from the NBC-TV network program that entertained 22 million viewers weekly. John Angel, who founded the chain, says his idea, which was put into effect in Waterford, Conn., has spread from New England to the Middle Atlantic States, the South, Midwest and to the Rockies. Angel expects there will be 500 centers.

Hullabaloo will be open Friday, Saturday and holiday eves from 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. during regular school sessions, and at least three nights weekly during vacation. Like all Hullabaloos, the Cape Girardeau version will feature the type of live music that is popular with today's young adults. Assisting Armstrong in the supervision of the center will be security officers.

"Hullabaloo," "offer young adults a chance to be themselves by themselves, under the kind of sympathetic controls that encourage them to demonstrate the high degree of responsibility inherent in almost all of them. Our center is dedicated to the idea that what young people want is a roomy, no-adults place where they can socialize in their own way. But, they must abide by the few, but strictly enforced rules governing Hullabaloo Scenes.

"Among those rules are the admission age of 14 to 20 only; no drinking; only carbonated soft drinks sold; no congregating in cars in the parking area; and no readmission on any night once a patron has gone outside, even he or she offers to buy a second ticket.

"It is policies such as these which have won for Hullabaloos the respect of their communities. Residents and officials have come to look on Hullabaloos as fine recreational places for their young people bridge the difficult years between childhood and adulthood."

Thursday will be parents night. All parents are invited. State Sen. Al Spradling will be on hand to welcome them.

Safety Tags Required For New Autos

WASHINGTON (AP) — All new American cars sold after Jan. 1 must bear prominent labels or tags saying they conform with national safety standards set up by the Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966.

This word has been given to automobile manufacturers by Lowell K. Bridwell, federal highway administrator. He told the manufacturers to inform his office of how they intend to comply with the order before the Jan. 1 deadline.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

When something goes wrong, find a scapegoat! That seems to be the basic philosophy of President Johnson, who has yet to accept responsibility for anything bad that has happened since he came into office in 1963.

For instance, when housewives protested higher prices, LBJ suggested they were in part responsible and urged them to "put on their glasses" and shop for cheaper cuts of meat.

When crime became a reign of terror, he blamed the public and said he hoped "that everyone in this country will become alarmed at what is happening and ask their representatives in Congress to do something about it."

But, when he talks about inflation, he ignores the fact that his record-breaking budgets and deficits are the chief contributors to rising prices.

And when he talks about the crime wave, he overlooks the fact that he vetoed the only crime bill passed by Congress last year, overruled his own Crime Commission's recommendations for supervised wiretap legislation and has failed to come up with a program to meet the problem.

GRANDCHILDREN

Two of our grandchildren
Are visiting here with me
Our house once neat and tidy
Ain't what it used to be

Our living room is cluttered
There's toys in the hall
Finger prints on the window panes
And smudges on the wall

On the lawn are sand pails
Other things galore
An assortment of tin lids
Containing mud pies at the door

Our little ones are precious
And require a lot of care
But it gives us pleasure
To see them happy here

It would be a sad tomorrow
If the death angel should come and take away our loved ones
Visiting in our home

Wouldn't it be like heaven
To have them back again
Of finger prints and smudges
We would never more complain.

PLAINER POPE

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has asked that the terminology, "His Holiness of Our Lord" be dropped in favor of a simpler designation, "The Holy Father."

Also, in appointments, the Pope said that hereafter he will simply "appoint" rather than "benignly deign to appoint."

Blue Book to Be Ready Soon

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state, said today his staff will have the 1967-68 Blue Book ready for delivery Dec. 22 this year, about three months earlier than usual.

And the state manual will be about 250 pages thinner because more information will be put on each page. The '65-'66 Blue Book contained 1,576 pages.

Kirkpatrick said the book had to be redesigned with offset printing because it was swiftly nearing the point of becoming a two-volume manual.

He said all the usual information, including complete information on new agencies and institutions, would be in the new Blue Book.

But he said the statutory limit of 40,000 copies will not be enough. When the books are delivered by the Von Hoffman Press they become collectors' items almost overnight.

Autos Recalled for Defect Inspection

DETROIT (AP)— Ford Motor Co. says it is recalling 745,000 cars because of possible defects in their steering systems.

Among the vehicles being recalled, Ford said, are 447,000 Mustang 1967 models. The firm said 267,000 of the Mustangs have the type steering systems in which defects have been discovered, but all 447,000 must be recalled to locate which ones have the suspect system.

The other cars being recalled are 298,000 Falcon, Fairlane and Thunderbird cars built in 1966 and 1967.

The Falcons, Fairlanes and Thunderbirds are being recalled because of "a small number of reported loose or disengaged steering wheels."

The Mustang defect involves "the possibility that the reinforcing rods in the plastic steering wheel spokes could separate" causing an uneven load which could lead to steering malfunction, Ford said.

'Star Trek' Performer On Telethon

PADUCAH -- Leonard Nimoy in everday life but known to millions of admirers as "Mr. Spock," the executive officer aboard the space ship Enterprise in the Friday night television serial "Star Trek," will be the featured star in the 15-hour performance of Telethon of Stars.

The handicapped children of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee and Missouri will benefit by the 11th telethon sponsored by Lions clubs in the channel 6 TV viewing area.

FUN, ACTION and a place to go where kids can be themselves by themselves sums up the reason why TV's Hullabaloo Scene, a national chain of over 60 dance centers exclusively for 14-18-year-olds, has caught on among the country's young adults of high school age.

Hullabaloo Scene Will Open Friday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Members of the 14 to 20 year old set will have an in-spot of their own, when TV's Hullabaloo Scene opens Friday night at 8 p.m. on highway 61 south.

The new Hullabaloo's the latest in a national chain of 72 such centers in 24 states.

Opening night will be emceed by KGMO's own Rusty Sharpe and will feature "The Great Society," a group of musicians. Also on hand for the grand opening will be two Hullabaloo Dancers from New York City, who will teach area youngsters the latest dance steps.

TV's Hullabaloo Scene got its name from the NBC-TV network program that entertained 22 million viewers weekly. John Angel, who founded the chain, says his idea, which was put into effect in Waterford, Conn., has spread from New England to the Middle Atlantic States, the South, Midwest and to the Rockies. Angel expects there will be 500 centers.

Hullabaloo will be open Friday, Saturday and holiday eves from 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. during regular school sessions, and at least three nights weekly during vacation. Like all Hullabaloos, the Cape Girardeau version will feature the type of live music that is popular with today's young adults. Assisting Armstrong in the supervision of the center will be security officers.

"Hullabaloo," "offer young adults a chance to be themselves by themselves, under the kind of sympathetic controls that encourage them to demonstrate the high degree of responsibility inherent in almost all of them. Our center is dedicated to the idea that what young people want is a roomy, no-adults place where they can socialize in their own way. But, they must abide by the few, but strictly enforced rules governing Hullabaloo Scenes.

"Among those rules are the admission age of 14 to 20 only; no drinking; only carbonated soft drinks sold; no congregating in cars in the parking area; and no readmission on any night once a patron has gone outside, even he or she offers to buy a second ticket.

"It is policies such as these which have won for Hullabaloos the respect of their communities. Residents and officials have come to look on Hullabaloos as fine recreational places for their young people bridge the difficult years between childhood and adulthood."

Thursday will be parents night. All parents are invited. State Sen. Al Spradling will be on hand to welcome them.

Safety Tags Required For New Autos

WASHINGTON (AP) — All new American cars sold after Jan. 1 must bear prominent labels or tags saying they conform with national safety standards set up by the Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966.

This word has been given to automobile manufacturers by Lowell K. Bridwell, federal highway administrator. He told the manufacturers to inform his office of how they intend to comply with the order before the Jan. 1 deadline.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

When something goes wrong, find a scapegoat! That seems to be the basic philosophy of President Johnson, who has yet to accept responsibility for anything bad that has happened since he came into office in 1963.

For instance, when housewives protested higher prices, LBJ suggested they were in part responsible and urged them to "put on their glasses" and shop for cheaper cuts of meat.

When crime became a reign of terror, he blamed the public and said he hoped "that everyone in this country will become alarmed at what is happening and ask their representatives in Congress to do something about it."

But, when he talks about inflation, he ignores the fact that his record-breaking budgets and deficits are the chief contributors to rising prices.

And when he talks about the crime wave, he overlooks the fact that he vetoed the only crime bill passed by Congress last year, overruled his own Crime Commission's recommendations for supervised wiretap legislation and has failed to come up with a program to meet the problem.

GRANDCHILDREN

Two of our grandchildren
Are visiting here with me
Our house once neat and tidy
Ain't what it used to be

Our living room is cluttered
There's toys in the hall
Finger prints on the window panes
And smudges on the wall

On the lawn are sand pails
Other things galore
An assortment of tin lids
Containing mud pies at the door

Our little ones are precious
And require a lot of care
But it gives us pleasure
To see them happy here

It would be a sad tomorrow
If the death angel should come and take away our loved ones
Visiting in our home

Wouldn't it be like heaven
To have them back again
Of finger prints and smudges
We would never more complain.

PLAINER POPE

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has asked that the terminology, "His Holiness of Our Lord" be dropped in favor of a simpler designation, "The Holy Father."

Also, in appointments, the Pope said that hereafter he will simply "appoint" rather than "benignly deign to appoint."

Blue Book to Be Ready Soon

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state, said today his staff will have the 1967-68 Blue Book ready for delivery Dec. 22 this year, about three months earlier than usual.

And the state manual will be about 250 pages thinner because more information will be put on each page. The '65-'66 Blue Book contained 1,576 pages.

Kirkpatrick said the book had to be redesigned with offset printing because it was swiftly nearing the point of becoming a two-volume manual.

He said all the usual information, including complete information on new agencies and institutions, would be in the new Blue Book.

But he said the statutory limit of 40,000 copies will not be enough. When the books are delivered by the Von Hoffman Press they become collectors' items almost overnight.

Autos Recalled for Defect Inspection

DETROIT (AP)— Ford Motor Co. says it is recalling 745,000 cars because of possible defects in their steering systems.

Among the vehicles being recalled, Ford said, are 447,000 Mustang 1967 models. The firm said 267,000 of the Mustangs have the type steering systems in which defects have been discovered, but all 447,000 must be recalled to locate which ones have the suspect system.

The other cars being recalled are 298,000 Falcon, Fairlane and Thunderbird cars built in 1966 and 1967.

The Falcons, Fairlanes and Thunderbirds are being recalled because of "a small number of reported loose or disengaged steering wheels."

The Mustang defect involves "the possibility that the reinforcing rods in the plastic steering wheel spokes could separate" causing an uneven load which could lead to steering malfunction, Ford said.

Students Encouraged To Write News Stories

COLUMBIA -- A journalism news program designed to encourage elementary and secondary school students to write news and feature stories and to analyze news from the media is underway at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

The program is being conducted by Mary Maude Freeland, extension editor. It is designed to encourage children from kindergarten through high school to share news of their school community through the local media plus encouraging them to use newspapers and broadcast media for information and enjoyment.

Miss Freeland is now mailing suggestions to schools to help stimulate student writers to use knowledge on their experience and educational level, to find news, analyze facts and write their stories.

For example, in one Boone County school, third grade students were asked to write stories comparing the extinction of dinosaurs to the failure of businesses in the modern world. The object was to get students to see the connection between the failure of each to survive -- namely, the inability of each to meet and cope with changes in environment.

Actual writing in the project is usually worked into the class room program. In some schools the teacher, after conferring with Miss Freeland and the local media, may supervise the news-writing process. However, all reporting and writing is done by students working on their own.

A typical children's page may contain news, editorials, imaginative and humorous articles, verse, sports, fashion, interviews and book reviews -- nearly all types of articles. The results are often delightful insights into the children's conception of ideas and facts. Seeing their writing in print or appearing on broadcast programs proves an incentive for youngsters to express ideas about themselves, their school communities and the world around them.

Often a school representative serves as a correspondent from his grade or high school. This person covers the news with assistance from school photographers and sports reporters.

In addition to the interest and experience gained by the children, children's pages give readers a glimpse into the school community that might be obtained in no other way.

A comparatively recent development in the program is the growth of taped features in the schools for local radio and television stations. Relatively few schools now do this but the concept is growing.

Regardless of whether any student taking part in the project goes into the journalism field as a correspondent or in any other capacity, the experience helps them be informed adults by teaching them to better interpret and understand the they read or hear through the media.

Miss Freeland also works with adult correspondents -- about 350-400 of them. Evaluations are made each year from random correspondent samples. Individual certificates of merit are sent to those who show proficiency in their reporting and analysis. Scores are based on an average of all divisions -- features, advertising, photography, etc. -- into which any work falls.

"Since students from college and university schools of journalism tend to go into the wider, higher paying fields with greater financial opportunities, this program helps prepare people who live in small towns and rural areas to be better correspondants," says Miss Freeland. "Journalism graduates in the weekly and small daily field prefer ownership or managerial positions."

Miss Freeland writes and edits "The Listening Post," a monthly magazine dedicated to journalism education for newspaper correspondents. One section is devoted to reporting the school community. The magazine is sent to all teachers taking part in the school program, all adult correspondents and to news chiefs in local newspapers and radio and television stations and other editorial groups who are encouraged to use worthwhile articles.

Students Encouraged To Write News Stories

COLUMBIA -- A journalism news program designed to encourage elementary and secondary school students to write news and feature stories and to analyze news from the media is underway at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

The program is being conducted by Mary Maude Freeland, extension editor. It is designed to encourage children from kindergarten through high school to share news of their school community through the local media plus encouraging them to use newspapers and broadcast media for information and enjoyment.

Miss Freeland is now mailing suggestions to schools to help stimulate student writers to use knowledge on their experience and educational level, to find news, analyze facts and write their stories.

For example, in one Boone County school, third grade students were asked to write stories comparing the extinction of dinosaurs to the failure of businesses in the modern world. The object was to get students to see the connection between the failure of each to survive -- namely, the inability of each to meet and cope with changes in environment.

Actual writing in the project is usually worked into the class room program. In some schools the teacher, after conferring with Miss Freeland and the local media, may supervise the news-writing process. However, all reporting and writing is done by students working on their own.

A typical children's page may contain news, editorials, imaginative and humorous articles, verse, sports, fashion, interviews and book reviews -- nearly all types of articles. The results are often delightful insights into the children's conception of ideas and facts. Seeing their writing in print or appearing on broadcast programs proves an incentive for youngsters to express ideas about themselves, their school communities and the world around them.

Often a school representative serves as a correspondent from his grade or high school. This person covers the news with assistance from school photographers and sports reporters.

Mayor-Council Rule Clears for Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in 93 years, the nation's capital is going to have the form of government employed in most of the other cities of the country— a mayor and a city council.

The last obstacle to the change was hurdled Wednesday when the Senate confirmed President Johnson's nine nominees to the Washington City Council.

Earlier, the President tapped Walter Washington to be the capital city's mayor or commissioner, replacing a three-commissioner system that was instituted in 1874.

Missouri U. Major Brain Power Source

COLUMBIA -- The big need of industry and business in the nation's rapid economic expansion is brain power; in Missouri the State U iversity is a major source of that brain power, President John C. Weaver pointed out today in speaking of the University's role in the state's economic development.

Dr. Weaver made the statement in expanding on his budget message accompanying the University's request to the General Assembly for operational need in 1968-69. In his message he stressed that Missouri's advancement as a state depends on an educated citizenry. Such advancement would necessarily to economic well being as well as cultural factors, he explained today.

A strong state university offering adequate quality education plays a major roll in the state's economic development, he said. It provides a "brain power pool" through the graduates turned out ing the technical, administrative, professional and other areas which demand more and more trained personnel. The educational institution also specialized services through a distinguished faculty and researchers, he added. Business and industry, and governmental and other agencies, constantly turn to the University for data, consultants, and researchers to solve their problems.

"The educational level of a state can be a determining factor in the economic status of a state," President Weaver said. "The University of Missouri on its four campuses has a vital role and responsibility in maintaining Missouri's high educational level. It cannot do that by standing still. It must move ahead with other institutions of higher education and with technological developments. For that it needs support for progress from the state itself and from the people of the state."

The annual report of the University's B&PA research center, an agency whose activities include many areas of industry and resource development, comments on manpower utilization:

"One of of remarkable developments of industrial society has been the shift in emphasis from brawn to brain in utilization of humans."

Dr. Weaver pointed out in that connection the recent trend for industries built on modern developments in science and technology to locate in states with outstanding universities and research facilites. This indicates they are looking for nearness to a source of well-trained, specialized personnel in graduates and faculty, perhaps as much as to a supply of raw materials, handy markets, and adequate transportation he said.

The noted economist, John Kenneth Galbraith, in his book, "The Affluent Society" points up the dependence of technological advance on the investment in education, training and scientific opportunity for individuals. He notes also that investment in human beings is as important as investment in material capital in modern economic activity.

The operations budget requested by the University would provide for such expenditures as increasingly essential improvements and expansion in the teaching and research staff, the University's numerous health, extension and other statewide services, and supporting facilites for instruction and research. Given the support for progress represented in the budget request, Dr. Weaver said, the University can take a major stride forward toward helping the state's economic develpment. This help would be an integral part of giving the qualified youth of the state the education they need and to which they are entitled, he added; and that would increase their chances for using their training to further the state's welfare.

The University has a long history of working for the industrial and economic development of Missouri. Through the College of Agriculture at Columbia and the extension services agriculture, in itself a major industry that fosters many associated industries, has been effectively advance. The University of Missouri at Rolla has long played a major role in developing the state's natural resources. The establishment of campuses at Kansas City and St. Louis means the University is in a portion to work more effectively in helping develop urban areas.

University placement records show job openings for University graduates exceed the graduates available. Industries and governmental agencies have University faculty on their consultant staffs; support research into scientific and economic problems affecting their areas; and support educational programs aimed at increasing the qualified graduates in apecialized areas.

The University-wide Office for Industrial Development was established by the University in 1965 to serve as liaison with the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development and other agencies involved in industrial and economic development. It also furthers University participation in research acitivities related to industrial development.

The University's Research Park in Columbia is a complex of research facilities centering around the research activities of the University. In it sites are available for industrial and governmental research facilities. The Research Reactor Facility, one of the most powerful at any university, is in Research Park; it has immense possibilities for aiding Missouri industries through research involving the use of radioactive material. It can also provide such materials for use in engineering, manufacturing processes, matallurgy, medicine and many other areas.

For more than five years the Business and Public Administration Research Center has been conducting a long range study of Missouri's economic development covering the economic and governmental structure. The study is supported in part by more than 30 Missouri firms; it includes such major areas as manufacturing trends, transportation, labor force, forestry, recreation, and inter-industry structure. Upon completion of the study of summary of findings will be prepared as a basis for suggesting ways and means of improving the economy's vitality and health.

In presenting the University's request for $78.6 million in state operating funds, President Weaver stressed that the University must continually expand to keep pace with modern developments. In addition to the research benefiting the state and its overall economy, the graduates add to the economy and production of Missouri's resources, and expand the industrial and agricultural resources of the state, he pointed out. Through the budget request, he said, the University solicits support for progress.

Mayor-Council Rule Clears for Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in 93 years, the nation's capital is going to have the form of government employed in most of the other cities of the country— a mayor and a city council.

The last obstacle to the change was hurdled Wednesday when the Senate confirmed President Johnson's nine nominees to the Washington City Council.

Earlier, the President tapped Walter Washington to be the capital city's mayor or commissioner, replacing a three-commissioner system that was instituted in 1874.

Missouri U. Major Brain Power Source

COLUMBIA -- The big need of industry and business in the nation's rapid economic expansion is brain power; in Missouri the State University is a major source of that brain power, President John C. Weaver pointed out today in speaking of the University's role in the state's economic development.

Dr. Weaver made the statement in expanding on his budget message accompanying the University's request to the General Assembly for operational need in 1968-69. In his message he stressed that Missouri's advancement as a state depends on an educated citizenry. Such advancement would necessarily to economic well being as well as cultural factors, he explained today.

A strong state university offering adequate quality education plays a major roll in the state's economic development, he said. It provides a "brain power pool" through the graduates turned out ing the technical, administrative, professional and other areas which demand more and more trained personnel. The educational institution also specialized services through a distinguished faculty and researchers, he added. Business and industry, and governmental and other agencies, constantly turn to the University for data, consultants, and researchers to solve their problems.

"The educational level of a state can be a determining factor in the economic status of a state," President Weaver said. "The University of Missouri on its four campuses has a vital role and responsibility in maintaining Missouri's high educational level. It cannot do that by standing still. It must move ahead with other institutions of higher education and with technological developments. For that it needs support for progress from the state itself and from the people of the state."

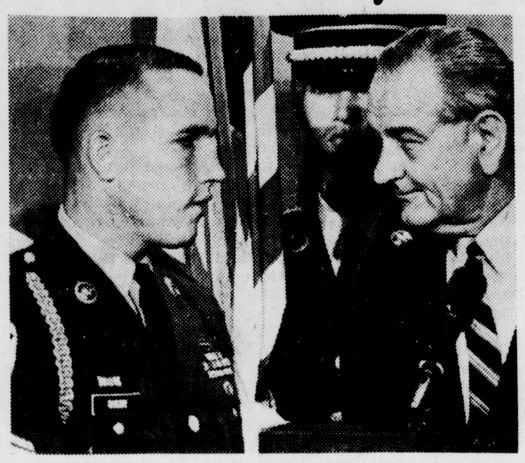
Medal of Honor

Vietnam Hero Honored by LBJ



U. S. Army Sgt. David C. Dolby accepts congratulations from President Lyndon B. Johnson at the beginning of a White House ceremony in which the President presented the Medal of Honor to Sergeant Dolby for heroism in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (ANF)—U. S. Army Sgt. David C. Dolby accepted the Medal of Honor looking surprisingly relaxed for a young man standing next to the President in front of national television cameras.

President Lyndon B. Johnson had called him "one of the nation's bravest men," and Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor had told about his heroic actions in Vietnam.

But the 21-year-old Airborne sergeant took in stride the activity swirling around him at the White House, and seemed very interested in meeting fellow soldiers and greeting with a happy smile some 100 hometown friends who had traveled from Pennsylvania to attend the ceremony.

Yes, the broad-shouldered paratrooper told reporters who gathered near him after the President had slipped the medal around his neck, he would like to go back to Vietnam. But he wouldn't be returning, he explained in soft-spoken words, because his current enlistment would be up in February and he was thinking about going to college.

With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Dolby of Oaks, Pa., and his brother, Daniel, 17, at his side, Sergeant Dolby accepted the Medal of Honor—the 11th presented to Army soldiers for service in Vietnam — with the same unassuming sureness that he must have shown on May 21, 1966.

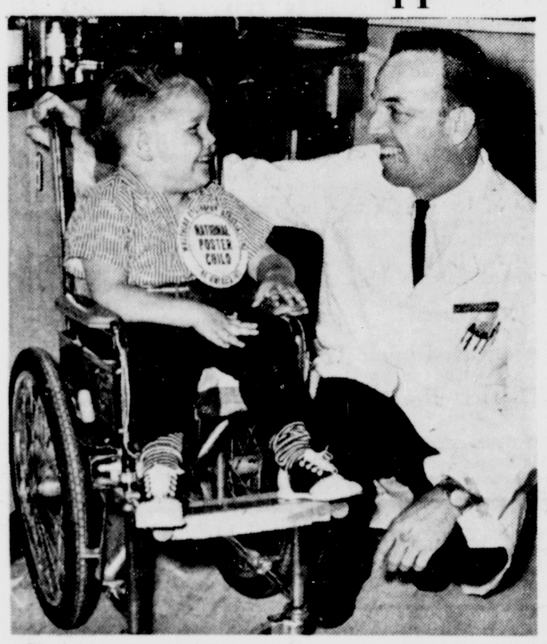
That day, as a Specialist 4, he was a machine gunner with a 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) platoon that met heavy fire while advancing tactically toward a ridge.

He moved wounded men to safety and redeployed platoon members to engage the enemy after his platoon leader had been wounded. He then killed three enemy machine gunners and neutralized the enemy fire, enabling soldiers on the flanks to advance.

"Although repeatedly under fire at close range," the Medal of Honor Citation said, Sergeant Dolby directed artillery fire and marked targets for air strikes, contributing "significantly to the success of the overall assault on the enemy position."

Sergeant Dolby, who enlisted in the U. S. Army in February 1965, now is with the 82d Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., and will report to Fort Dix, N. J., on Oct. 28.

Patient-Doctor Rapport



Their beaming smiles testify to the warm relationship existing between Paul Carter Hawkins, national poster child for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, and Dr. Carl M. Pearson, professor of Medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles. Dr. Pearson, a leading authority on muscle disease, pronounced Paul capable of carrying out his strenuous duties as ambassador extraordinary for the March Against Muscular Dystrophy, now under way throughout the country. The drive raises funds for MDAA's far-ranging program of scientific research into dystrophy and other crippling disorders of the neuromuscular system.

FASCHING: FUN AND FROLICK

If you've ever felt like really cutting loose—and who hasn't—you can forget worries and cares and make merry to your heart's content during Fasching, or Fastnacht, celebrated annually in Germany beginning November 11 at 11 p.m. until Ash Wednesday.

Fasching derives from the Feast of Fools, the medieval successor to the ancient Greek's welcome to Dionysos, god of wine, and the Roman Saturnalia festival.

During the Middle Ages, Fasching was observed on the three days before Ash Wednesday, from which it took its name "Fastnacht," or "Shrovetide." It was the guilds, which in those days arranged the Karneval pageants. According to information supplied by researchers at Lufthansa German Airlines, they moved about town performing little plays in front of various houses and, sometimes, in honor of influential patricians.

Today, the festivities are preserved chiefly in the Southwest of Germany, in the Frankish area and in the Rhineland, where Cologne is the center of Karneval.

And it's Cologne that sets the pace of Karneval activities in the rural environs, with singing, dancing, "swaying" to the rhythm of popular Karneval songs, marching, balls and fancy dress gatherings.

The whole atmosphere of the city plays its part. The Cologne way of doing things at Karneval time is something that can't be exported. It can only thrive on the native soil of this city and the abundance of optimism, dry humor and love of parody inherent in every citizen. So it's up to all "outsiders" to find their way into this Cologne element with lightness of heart. A carefree, relaxing trip from the U.S. to Germany via Lufthansa German Airlines, many Americans visiting during Fasching have discovered, is one excellent way to arrive in Cologne in the proper frame of mind for fun and frolick.

Starting New Year's Eve, the events gather momentum until the final "Three Wild Days" in Cologne and other cities. Highlights of these are the Shrove Sunday and "Rose Monday" processions. Cologne school youngsters arrange these parades, and even the smallest children taking part demonstrate what comical and crazy ideas one can have if one has the good fortune to be a native of Cologne.

But whether you decide to attend Karneval in Cologne or the Fasching celebrations in one of Germany's other cities chances are you'll agree that there's nothing like it anywhere for chasing cares away!

Vietnam Hero Honored by LBJ

WASHINGTON (ANF)—U. S. Army Sgt. David C. Dolby accepted the Medal of Honor looking surprisingly relaxed for a young man standing next to the President in front of national television cameras.

President Lyndon B. Johnson had called him "one of the nation's bravest men," and Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor had told about his heroic actions in Vietnam.

But the 21-year-old Airborne sergeant took in stride the activity swirling around him at the White House, and seemed very interested in meeting fellow soldiers and greeting with a happy smile some 100 hometown friends who had traveled from Pennsylvania to attend the ceremony.

U. S. Army Sgt. David C. Dolby accepts congratulations from President Lyndon B. Johnson at the beginning of a White House ceremony in which the President presented the Medal of Honor to Sergeant Dolby for heroism in Vietnam.

Yes, the broad-shouldered paratrooper told reporters who gathered near him after the President had slipped the medal around his neck, he would like to go back to Vietnam. But he wouldn't be returning, he explained in soft-spoken words, because his current enlistment would be up in February and he was thinking about going to college.

With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Dolby of Oaks, Pa., and his brother, Daniel, 17, at his side, Sergeant Dolby accepted the Medal of Honor—the 11th presented to Army soldiers for service in Vietnam — with the same unassuming sureness that he must have shown on May 21, 1966.

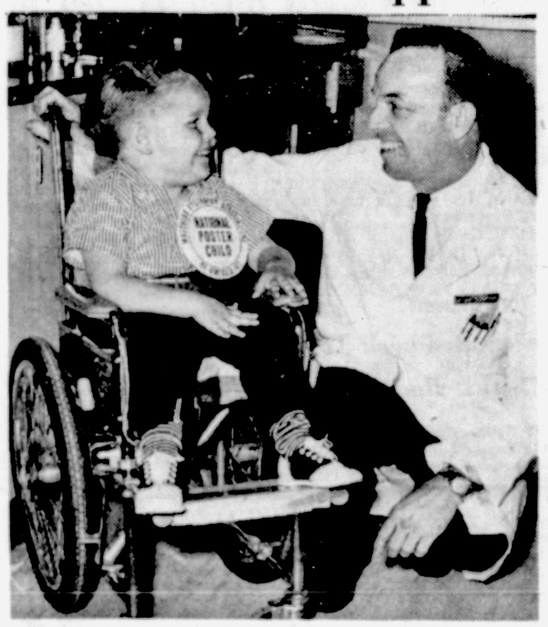
That day, as a Specialist 4, he was a machine gunner with a 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) platoon that met heavy fire while advancing tactically toward a ridge.

He moved wounded men to safety and redeployed platoon members to engage the enemy after his platoon leader had been wounded. He then killed three enemy machine gunners and neutralized the enemy fire, enabling soldiers on the flanks to advance.

"Although repeatedly under fire at close range," the Medal of Honor Citation said, Sergeant Dolby directed artillery fire and marked targets for air strikes, contributing "significantly to the success of the overall assault on the enemy position."

Sergeant Dolby, who enlisted in the U. S. Army in February 1965, now is with the 82d Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., and will report to Fort Dix, N. J., on Oct. 28.

Patient-Doctor Rapport



Their beaming smiles testify to the warm relationship existing between Paul Carter Hawkins, national poster child for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, and Dr. Carl M. Pearson, professor of Medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles. Dr. Pearson, a leading authority on muscle disease, pronounced Paul capable of carrying out his strenuous duties as ambassador extraordinary for the March Against Muscular Dystrophy, now under way throughout the country. The drive raises funds for MDAA's far-ranging program of scientific research into dystrophy and other crippling disorders of the neuromuscular system.

FASCHING: FUN AND FROLICK

If you've ever felt like really cutting loose—and who hasn't—you can forget worries and cares and make merry to your heart's content during Fasching, or Fastnacht, celebrated annually in Germany beginning November 11 at 11 p.m. until Ash Wednesday.

Fasching derives from the Feast of Fools, the medieval successor to the ancient Greek's welcome to Dionysos, god of wine, and the Roman Saturnalia festival.

During the Middle Ages, Fasching was observed on the three days before Ash Wednesday, from which it took its name "Fastnacht," or "Shrovetide." It was the guilds, which in those days arranged the Karneval pageants. According to information supplied by researchers at Lufthansa German Airlines, they moved about town performing little plays in front of various houses and, sometimes, in honor of influential patricians.

Today, the festivities are preserved chiefly in the Southwest of Germany, in the Frankish area and in the Rhineland, where Cologne is the center of Karneval.

And it's Cologne that sets the pace of Karneval activities in the rural environs, with singing, dancing, "swaying" to the rhythm of popular Karneval songs, marching, balls and fancy dress gatherings.

The whole atmosphere of the city plays its part. The Cologne way of doing things at Karneval time is something that can't be exported. It can only thrive on the native soil of this city and the abundance of optimism, dry humor and love of parody inherent in every citizen. So it's up to all "outsiders" to find their way into this Cologne element with lightness of heart. A carefree, relaxing trip from the U.S. to Germany via Lufthansa German Airlines, many Americans visiting during Fasching have discovered, is one excellent way to arrive in Cologne in the proper frame of mind for fun and frolick.

Starting New Year's Eve, the events gather momentum until the final "Three Wild Days" in Cologne and other cities. Highlights of these are the Shrove Sunday and "Rose Monday" processions. Cologne school youngsters arrange these parades, and even the smallest children taking part demonstrate what comical and crazy ideas one can have if one has the good fortune to be a native of Cologne.

But whether you decide to attend Karneval in Cologne or the Fasching celebrations in one of Germany's other cities chances are you'll agree that there's nothing like it anywhere for chasing cares away!

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

"This country is just beginning to accept the concept of lifelong learning" Eugene Johnson, Executive Director of the Adult Education Association, said at a recent conference at the University of Michigan.

As a result of, (for the average person) shorter working hours, longer vacations, earlier retirement and longer lives, people have more time for learning and many of them are taking advantage of the increased opportunities available. Some of them for personal enrichment, for better use of leisure, to learn job skills, some even to get degrees.

We believe our own school system is an example of the increased opportunity for continious learning. There is a class, a course for almost anyone, for almost any interest, for almost any age and in just about any subject in which there is interest for as few as ten people. Last year about 1,700 adults in this and neighboring communities were enrolled in one of the many courses available. Some, in the vocational classes were enrolled full time, others came in part time, usually at night.

The program is growing and our Board of Education feels that it is their responsibility to meet the educational needs and interests of the community, first of all for the children and secondly for those who want to learn at any age.

During the 28 months that the Manpower Development Training Act classes have been in operation here, under the sponsorship of our Board of Education, 397 students, mostly adults but including some youth, have been trained in various vocational subjects. We have been able to make a followup study on all but 34 of these graduates. We were unable to reach the 34. Of the remaining 363, 337 are employed in a gainful occupation. This constitutes more than 90% employment record. It may be even better because we can assume that some of the 34, of whom we could not reach, are also employed.

The composite follow-up questionnaire, to determine job status, i.e.; whether or not employed, type of employment, pay scales, etc., was done in cooperation with the Sikeston Office of the Missouri Employment Service.

The significance of this record is that these people were formerly unemployed. Their level of skill or ability was such that they could not find or hold a job. After the training which they were given here, some of it in basic education, that is learning to read and write, but mostly in vocational skills, over 90% are now self-supporting. These people were formerly "tax eaters", they are now tax payers. Equally important, they can respect themselves for their newly acquired ability to find and hold a job, to get decent wages, to support themselves and their families.

The argument, by the mayors of our two principal cities, St. Louis and Kansas City, that they are receiving unfair treatment from the state in allocation of funds for police protection, education and other civic services, is interesting. The contend, and their contention is probably true, that they pay a far greater amount in taxes to the state treasury than they receive in turn. Naturally they want more. In fact, it seems to us that they want special treatment, which might seem to be at the expense of the smaller communities throughout the state.

No doubt they have a valid case if they wish to receive more funds on the basis of need. Undoubtly, they do have some problems that, if solvable, are more expensive than the lesser problems of the smaller communities. However, to say that they should get more from the state because they pay more in taxes, is an argument, in our opinion, that won't hold water. Most of us outstate help to pay some of their taxes. When we buy an item, that we can't buy locally, in St. Louis, go there for a football game or to see a play, some of the money which we spend goes to Jefferson City as part of St. Louis' tax bill. St. Louis firms are suppliers of much merchandise and of services to the state's smaller communities and naturally payment for these goods and services goes to St. Louis and naturally again is taxed. We suspect that St. Louisians doing this business like this arrangement very well.

Although hardly a real intelligent illustration, we wonder how St. Louis would prosper, or pay taxes, if it was walled in. Absurd, on the face of it, and both St. Louis and the outstate would be the worst for such a hypathetical situation, but it is still somewhat illustrative of our mutual dependency. So we can't bleed too much at the thought of St. Louis' tax bill. They are taxed no more than any of the rest of us. And it is a basic principle of taxation that the wealth is taxed wherever it is located. That is why the individual, with double our income, is (theoretically at least) taxed twice as heavily as we are.

We would also suggest that the record indicates, at least in the area of education, that St. Louis is not making as much effort to support their schools from local taxes as are most outstate sustems. Their tax levy, for example, is $2.51 while a very considerable number of outstate school districts levy a tax in excess of $4.00 on the $100 terms of taxable evaluation is a bit higher than the rest of the state, but not that much.

Undoubtly the cities need more state support for governmental or educational services. So do we all. Missouri rates very low among the states in its support of public schools from state tax sources. On the other hand, our ability to support education is much above the average of the other states. We hope that the Governor will place the matter of more state money for education high on his agenda for the special session of the Missouri General Assembly. We believe he will.

We would support the principal of more state funds going to those areas where the need is greatest. The cities, almost certainly, fall in these areas but we can't see that they are entitled to special consideration just because they serve as a way-station, for our tax dollar, on its way to Jefferson City.

We call your attention to National Education Week beginning Sunday, November 5 and ending Saturday, November 11. Its purpose, naturally, is to focus attention on this most important enterprise in our society: the preparation of our youth, and adults, to successfully cope with the problems and challenges of our day and the future and thus to perpetuate our nation's heritage, its welfare and strength.

Some of the civic clubs will feature programs relating to education and there will be other local observances to focus attention on the week and its importance.

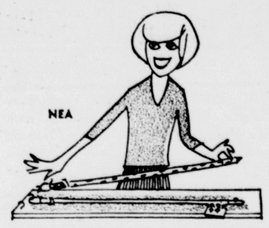
Polly's Pointers

Hint to the Bride: Keep Track of Gifts

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Brides making out guest lists for their weddings would do well to put the names and addresses on recipe file cards. Put a check on the card by the name when an invitation is addressed. I also took these cards to my bridal shower. One of my friends added, at the bottom of the proper card, what the gift was that I had received. When I had written the thank-you note, I put a check in front of the gift listed. I also had the addresses right at hand to address the envelopes. By filing these in alphabetical order they become real time savers. Also good for checking off thank-you notes for wedding gifts and, too, you have your Christmas card list started for the next year.—FRAN

DEAR POLLY—Put a hook in a nice clean board, and when you are washing dress belts put the buckles over the hook. Stretch out until the belt or belts are smooth and put a thumbtack in the other end to hold the belt tight until dry. This works wonderfully and eliminates ironing.—THELMA



DEAR POLLY—When a picture of the finished dish accompanies a new recipe I want to cut from a newspaper or magazine, I always cut out the picture as well as the recipe and put it on the back of my recipe card so I know exactly how the dish should look and get ideas about garnishes that would add to its appearance.—BERNADINE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to bring the finish back to a wooden cutting board. A red hot glass baking dish was put down on it and burned a black circle. How can we remove the burn and then refinish the top?—BERTHA

DEAR POLLY—In answer to P. A.'s problem of lost coat buttons I want to tell her that I put the eye part of hooks and eyes through the metal button on a coat and then sew the eyes to the coat and that really solves the problem.—MRS. R. R.

Ann Landers

Roping Nuts in Southwest Beware!

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you published some letters from women who complained because their husbands were too busy with bowling or golf or just watching sport on TV. You told them they should be thankful the guys weren't out chasing girls.

I live in the Southwest where rodeos and roping are popular. My husband is a roping nut. He would rather rope than eat, and I mean that literally. He hasn't had a meal with his family in three months.

I am an avid Landers' fan, however, and learned from you that it is stupid and useless to nag. So I kept my mouth shut and quietly found a hobby of my own.

My hobby is 5'll" and he thinks I'm wonderful. I'm not lonely anymore; in fact, I encourage my husband to go roping, and of course he is delighted.

In am not trying to whitewash what I am doing, Ann. I just hope you print this so some of those nuts out there in newspaperland will ask themselves, "Was it my wife who wrote that letter?" -- TEXAS OR ARIZONA OKLAHOMA CONTENTMENT

Dear Con: Of course I know in which of the three states you live, but I'm not tipping my mit. Let's let'em guess -- all you roping nuts in Texas, Arizona and Florida.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a complaint. It concerns these very small cars. (I call them non-cars.) Every time I think I have a parking space in a lot I discover that a small car is already parked there. Someone should design a gadget that sticks up high so people can see the space is taken. Also, it would help bewildered drivers to locate their non-cars in a parking lot. Thank you. -- IRKED

Dear Irked: A great idea! I hope some smart cookie invents it. A polelike affair, similar to a radio aerial might be appropriate -- something with a collapsible flag on the end. (Don't bother about sending Irked and me the royalties, boys, just go ahead and produce it.)

Dear Ann Landers: I am the 21-year-old mother of a new baby. She was born nine months and eight days after we were married.

My husband was transferred to this city six months ago when I was a pregnant newlywed. I didn't know anyone here and the first people to call on me were the wives of the men my husband worked with.

This afternoon one of the wives came over with a gift for the baby. She hadn't been in the house 10 minutes when she asked, "Your baby was born very soon after your marriage. Was it planned? Tell me what happened."

I was embarrassed and shocked and started to stumble around explaining that we wanted a family but not so soon and that I became pregnant on the honey moon. After she left I was furious with myself. She had a lot of nerve to ask such a question and I was stupid to have answered. But how does one get off the spot? What should I have said? -- D.D.D.

Dear D.D.D.: When a person asks a question about something that is none of his business the correct procedure is as follows: Say: "Will you repeat that?" After the question is repeated say, "I didn't think I heard correctly. It seemed inconceivable that you would ask such an intimate question. I wouldn't dream of discussing such a thing with you. Now, what else shall we talk about?"

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Fire Destroys $1,000 Worth of Pea Hay

50 years ago
November 2, 1917

A fire of unknown origin destroyed about $1,000 worth of pea hay belonging to M. G. Gresham and John A. Matthews Sunday afternoon. No insurance. The hay was stacked in a field near Applegate's Grove.

Miss Clarice Burton left Wednesday afternoon for Russellville, Ky., where she will take charge of the violin and expression department in the Logan College of that city.

The two sixth grades went on a nutting trip to Tram Switch Saturday. They had a big lunch and a fine time. The total number of nuts found were five. However, they did find a large brown bat, which is kept now in a glass case in their room.

Cab Responsible for Safe Deliveries

By Jack Strauss, L.L.D.

No matter how travelled a person was, Linda was always the sight to see. Unfortunately, however, she wasn't as well sighted as everyone else. Her vision, particularly at night, left something to be desired. Consequently, when she took a taxi to her aunt's house, whom she visited very infrequently, she didn't realize that the cabbie had left her off at the wrong address several houses away. What's more, he ungallantly refused to assist her to the front door despite being told that she couldn't see too well.

The result? Linda found it very difficult when she tried to walk around the side porch of "her aunt's house." Particularly, since the house at which she had been dropped had o side porch.

Stepping off into space, Linda landed on her pretty face and sued the taxi company for her injuries.

"For a taxi driver to take a passenger to the wrong address," she complained in court, "is pure carelessness."

"Nonsense," retorted the attorney for the taxi company. "A cabbie's not supposed to be able to identify the destination of a passenger. If a person doesn't know where he's going, that's his problem and not the cabbie's."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the taxie company pay for dropping Linda off at the wrong address?

This is how the judge ruled: The taxie company had to pay. The judge held that considering Linda's known poor vision, the cabbie was obliged to make sure that Linda was taken to the right address. What's more, he was also obliged to help her to the front door, as per her request. Not as a matter of gallantry, but as duty owed by the taxi company to an infirm passenger.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

"This country is just beginning to accept the concept of lifelong learning" Eugene Johnson, Executive Director of the Adult Education Association, said at a recent conference at the University of Michigan.

As a result of, (for the average person) shorter working hours, longer vacations, earlier retirement and longer lives, people have more time for learning and many of them are taking advantage of the increased opportunities available. Some of them for personal enrichment, for better use of leisure, to learn job skills, some even to get degrees.

We believe our own school system is an example of the increased opportunity for continious learning. There is a class, a course for almost anyone, for almost any interest, for almost any age and in just about any subject in which there is interest for as few as ten people. Last year about 1,700 adults in this and neighboring communities were enrolled in one of the many courses available. Some, in the vocational classes were enrolled full time, others came in part time, usually at night.

The program is growing and our Board of Education feels that it is their responsibility to meet the educational needs and interests of the community, first of all for the children and secondly for those who want to learn at any age.

During the 28 months that the Manpower Development Training Act classes have been in operation here, under the sponsorship of our Board of Education, 397 students, mostly adults but including some youth, have been trained in various vocational subjects. We have been able to make a follow up study on all but 34 of these graduates. We were unable to reach the 34. Of the remaining 363, 337 are employed in a gainful occupation. This constitutes more than 90% employment record. It may be even better because we can assume that some of the 34, of whom we could not reach, are also employed.

The composite follow-up questionnaire, to determine job status, i.e.; whether or not employed, type of employment, pay scales, etc., was done in cooperation with the Sikeston Office of the Missouri Employment Service.

The significance of this record is that these people were formerly unemployed. Their level of skill or ability was such that they could not find or hold a job. After the training which they were given here, some of it in basic education, that is learning to read and write, but mostly in vocational skills, over 90% are now self-supporting. These people were formerly "tax eaters", they are now tax payers. Equally important, they can respect themselves for their newly acquired ability to find and hold a job, to get decent wages, to support themselves and their families.

The argument, by the mayors of our two principal cities, St. Louis and Kansas City, that they are receiving unfair treatment from the state in allocation of funds for police protection, education and other civic services, is interesting. The contend, and their contention is probably true, that they pay a far greater amount in taxes to the state treasury than they receive in turn. Naturally they want more. In fact, it seems to us that they want special treatment, which might seem to be at the expense of the smaller communities throughout the state.

No doubt they have a valid case if they wish to receive more funds on the basis of need. Undoubtly, they do have some problems that, if solvable, are more expensive than the lesser problems of the smaller communities. However, to say that they should get more from the state because they pay more in taxes, is an argument, in our opinion, that won't hold water. Most of us outstate help to pay some of their taxes. When we buy an item, that we can't buy locally, in St. Louis, go there for a football game or to see a play, some of the money which we spend goes to Jefferson City as part of St. Louis' tax bill. St. Louis firms are suppliers of much merchandise and of services to the state's smaller communities and naturally payment for these goods and services goes to St. Louis and naturally again is taxed. We suspect that St. Louisians doing this business like this arrangement very well.

Although hardly a real intelligent illustration, we wonder how St. Louis would prosper, or pay taxes, if it was walled in. Absurd, on the face of it, and both St. Louis and the outstate would be the worst for such a hypathetical situation, but it is still somewhat illustrative of our mutual dependency. So we can't bleed too much at the thought of St. Louis' tax bill. They are taxed no more than any of the rest of us. And it is a basic principle of taxation that the wealth is taxed wherever it is located. That is why the individual, with double our income, is (theoretically at least) taxed twice as heavily as we are.

We would also suggest that the record indicates, at least in the area of education, that St. Louis is not making as much effort to support their schools from local taxes as are most outstate sustems. Their tax levy, for example, is $2.51 while a very considerable number of outstate school districts levy a tax in excess of $4.00 on the $100 terms of taxable evaluation is a bit higher than the rest of the state, but not that much.

Undoubtly the cities need more state support for governmental or educational services. So do we all. Missouri rates very low among the states in its support of public schools from state tax sources. On the other hand, our ability to support education is much above the average of the other states. We hope that the Governor will place the matter of more state money for education high on his agenda for the special session of the Missouri General Assembly. We believe he will.

We would support the principal of more state funds going to those areas where the need is greatest. The cities, almost certainly, fall in these areas but we can't see that they are entitled to special consideration just because they serve as a way-station, for our tax dollar, on its way to Jefferson City.

We call your attention to National Education Week beginning Sunday, November 5 and ending Saturday, November 11. Its purpose, naturally, is to focus attention on this most important enterprise in our society; the preparation of our youth, and adults, to successfully cope with the problems and challenges of our day and the future and thus to perpetuate our nation's heritage, its welfare and strength. Some of the civic clubs will feature programs relating to education and there will be other local observances to focus attention on the week and its importance.

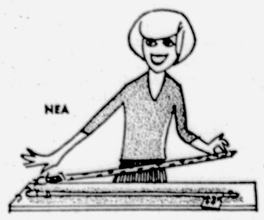
Hint to the Bride: Keep Track of Gifts

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Brides making out guest lists for their weddings would do well to put the names and addresses on recipe file cards. Put a check on the card by the name when an invitation is addressed. I also took these cards to my bridal shower. One of my friends added, at the bottom of the proper card, what the gift was that I had received. When I had written the thank-you note, I put a check in front of the gift listed. I also had the addresses right at hand to address the envelopes. By filing these in alphabetical order they become real time savers. Also good for checking off thank-you notes for wedding gifts and, too, you have your Christmas card list started for the next year.—FRAN

DEAR POLLY—Put a hook in a nice clean board, and when you are washing dress belts put the buckles over the hook. Stretch out until the belt or belts are smooth and put a thumbtack in the other end to hold the belt tight until dry. This works wonderfully and eliminates ironing.—THELMA



DEAR POLLY—When a picture of the finished dish accompanies a new recipe I want to cut from a newspaper or magazine, I always cut out the picture as well as the recipe and put it on the back of my recipe card so I know exactly how the dish should look and get ideas about garnishes that would add to its appearance.—BERNADINE

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to bring the finish back to a wooden cutting board. A red hot glass baking dish was put down on it and burned a black circle. How can we remove the burn and then refinish the top?—BERTHA

DEAR POLLY—In answer to P. A.'s problem of lost coat buttons I want to tell her that I put the eye part of hooks and eyes through the metal button on a coat and then sew the eyes to the coat and that really solves the problem.—MRS. R. R.

Ann Landers

Roping Nuts in Southwest Beware!

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you published some letters from women who complained because their husbands were too busy with bowling or golf or just watching sport on TV. You told them they should be thankful the guys weren't out chasing girls.

I live in the Southwest where rodeos and roping are popular. My husband is a roping nut. He would rather rope than eat, and I mean that literally. He hasn't had a meal with his family in three months.

I am an avid Landers' fan, however, and learned from you that it is stupid and useless to nag. So I kept my mouth shut and quietly found a hobby of my own.

My hobby is 5'll" and he thinks I'm wonderful. I'm not lonely anymore; in fact, I encourage my husband to go roping, and of course he is delighted.

In am not trying to whitewash what I am doing, Ann. I just hope you print this so some of those nuts out there in newspaperland will ask themselves, "Was it my wife who wrote that letter?" -- TEXAS OR ARIZONA OKLAHOMA CONTENTMENT

Dear Con: Of course I know in which of the three states you live, but I'm not tipping my mit. Let's let'em guess -- all you roping nuts in Texas, Arizona and Flordia.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a complaint. It concerns these very small cars. (I call them noncars.) Every time I think I have a parking space in a lot I discover that a small car is already parked there. Someone should design a gadget that sticks up high so people can see the space is taken. Also, it would help bewildered drivers to locate their non-cars in a parking lot. Thank you. -- IRKED

Dear Irked: A great idea! I hope some smart cookie invents it. A polelike affair, similar to a radio aerial might be appropriate -- something with a collapsible flag on the end. (Don't bother about sending Irked and me the royalties, boys, just go ahead and produce it.)

Dear Ann Landers: I am the 21-year-old mother of a new baby. She was born nine months and eight days after we were married.

My husband was transferred to this city six months ago when I was a pregnant newlywed. I didn't know anyone here and the first people to call on me were the wives of the men my husband worked with.

This afternoon one of the wives came over with a gift for the baby. She hadn't been in the house 10 minutes when she asked, "Your baby was born very soon after your marriage. Was it planned? Tell me what happened."

I was embarrassed and shocked and started to stumble around explaining that we wanted a family but not so soon and that I became pregnant on the honey moon.

After she left I was furious with myself. She had a lot of nerve to ask such a question and I was stupid to have answered. But how does one get off the spot? What should I have said? -- D.D.D.

Dear D.D.D.: When a person asks a question about something that is none of his business the correct procedure is as follows: Say: "Will you repeat that?" After the question is repeated say, "I didn't think I heard correctly. It seemed inconceivable that you would ask such an intimate question. I wouldn't dream of discussing such a thing with you. Now, what else shall we talk about?"

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
